LANSING BRIBE CASE TO GET COURT AIRING

PROSECUTOR CLAIMS SLUSH FUND RAN IN THOUSANDS

BY G. MILTON KELLY
Lansing, Feb. 28. (AP)—Preliminary examination of 21 of 26 respondents named in a legislative graft conspiracy warrant opened today with Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler presenting what he termed "foundations" for evidence to be introduced later in efforts to prove the existence of a slush fund of many thousands of dollars for payment of bribes to legislators in 1939.

Sigler disclosed for the first time in court hitherto concealed angles of the conspiracy warrant, which was issued by Circuit Judge Leland W. Cary's grand jury investigation of estate affairs.

Exhibits identified
Into the hearing record went partial identification of 269 exhibits, largely consisting of cancelled checks, bank deposit records, and letters, and the historical story of small loan and finance companies—on which the warrant alleges bribes were paid to influence legislative judgments.

Only about a dozen of the exhibits actually were introduced in evidence, the others being identified by witnesses and returned to the prosecution's voluminous files without ever being made public or displayed to the battery of 13 defense attorneys seated at two tables.

Sigler informed the court in a record statement that he was seeking to submit the documentary evidence in orderly fashion that "I will show that certain of this money went into the hands of certain of these defendants as legislative bribes."

Planck Confused
He traded gibes repeatedly with Joseph W. Planck, Lansing attorney who was one of the defense group. Sigler told Planck that when the exhibits finally are offered in evidence, they would be backed with testimony to support them "to your heart's content."

Planck complained that "I never have been confronted with this kind of situation before," as he and his colleagues sat in ignorance of what was going on while witnesses identified documents, which promptly went back into prosecution files, to be offered in evidence later.

Frederick B. Robinson, manager of a branch of the National Bank of Detroit, identified deposit slips showing that $8,270.52 was deposited in amounts ranging from $11 to $700 at various times between January 22, 1939, and July 31 of that year, in a special account he said was opened by one of the respondents, John E. Hancock, Detroit branch manager of Associates Discount Corp., of South Bend, Ind.

Robinson also identified signatures on a batch of checks—the total amount not stated—many of them drawn to Hancock or to "John E. Hancock legislative committee" and deposited on the same dates noted on the deposit certificates.

Letters Brought In
Another batch of checks went through similar identification routine, with Warren Whitehead, senior clerk of that bank, identifying endorsements of two other respondents, Abraham Cooper, president of the Union Investment company of Detroit, and Mark S. Young, who in 1939 was the Detroit representative of the National Discount corporation of South Bend.

KELLY WATCHES PORCUPINE DEAL

No Time Should Be Lost To Halt Timber Loss, Says Governor

Lansing, Feb. 28. (AP)—Governor Kelly declared today he would "watch closely" the state conservation department's program of purchasing the Porcupine Mountains for a forest museum, asserting no time was to be lost if timber cutters are to be kept out of the area.

Returning from an upper peninsula trip in which he visited the mountain area for the first time, Kelly said "I was greatly impressed with it. Everything is sponsored here and about it is true. It is magnificent and an excellent investment. The state will get its money's worth out of it."

Approval of the legislature for a $1,000,000 fund to buy the area, Kelly said, must be followed by prompt action to acquire title to the land.

"We are getting it just in time," he said. "Lumbermen are moving in on it in three directions and in another six or eight months they would have been striking into the heart of it. We must work fast."

P. J. Hoffmaster, state conservation director, has said the department already is preparing its ownership data and plans to start purchase negotiations within a month.

Seattle Loose Talk Loses Kiska Battle For Invading Force

Seattle, Feb. 28. (AP)—An army intelligence officer said tonight loose talk, mostly radiating from Seattle, enabled the Japanese to withdraw thousands of men and vast quantities of material out of Kiska last August to leave invading U. S. forces "with a hollow victory tantamount to defeat."

The officer was Maj. Albert J. Stowe, personal representative of Gen. Clayton Bissell, assistant chief of staff, army intelligence. His remarks were made in an interview.

"Common was the knowledge in Seattle that we planned to attack Kiska and, prior to the invasion, unauthorized persons, both military and civilian, openly disclosed the date, August 15.

"As a result the Japs got out voluntarily. Not one remained on the island when our troops arrived at 3 o'clock in the morning.

"Some scattered machine-gun fire the day before, indicated presence of hostile troops then. Even these were gone when we got there," the major said.

"They knew we were coming—and when, so accurately and so far in advance were the Japs tipped off that had they chosen to implement their forces they might have annihilated us."

TIRE THIEF ONLY 6

Irrington, N. J., Feb. 28. (AP)—Police said today they had apprehended a "thief whom passersby saw take a tire from the trunk of a parked automobile and then carry it down the street in a baby carriage. The thief, they added, was a six-year-old boy.

NEW PRESIDENT NAMED

Milwaukee, Feb. 28. (AP)—The Rev. Peter A. Brooks, S. J., head of the Missouri province of the Jesuit Order from 1917 until last December, tonight was named president of Marquette University to succeed the Rev. Raphael C. McCarthy, S. J.

Father McCarthy has been president of Marquette since 1935.

BRITISH BREAK LULL IN ITALY, BAG 2 TOWNS

AMERICAN CRUISER JOINS GUN DUEL AT ANZIO

BY KENNETH L. DIXON
Allied Headquarters, Naples, Feb. 28. (AP)—British troops, going over to the offensive on the Anzio beachhead, have stormed and captured two Nazi strongpoints southwest of the German-held village of Carroceto after two days of sharp fighting, the Allies announced today.

The scene of the British attack, which broke a week of comparative quiet on the beachhead front, is near the headwaters of the Molella river, a little stream that originates about a mile and a half southwest of Carroceto and runs almost due west to empty into the sea 11 miles up the coast from Anzio.

(The German high command communique, giving its version of what apparently was the same engagement, said that about two battalions of Allied troops were wiped out after they had been encircled near Buon Riposo, a hamlet situated on the Molella river approximately a mile and a half southwest of Carroceto and a mile west of the Carroceto-Anzio highway. The German bulletin claimed 650 Allied prisoners in the fight. Such an encirclement of Allied forces was claimed repeatedly by the enemy last week but never confirmed by Allied sources.)

Shells By Thousands
Artillery duelling rose to a new intensity on the beachhead, with both sides hurling thousands of shells.

It was disclosed that the Nazis are using a new 17-centimeter (6.69 inch) railway gun on the Cassino front that outranges any Allied artillery pieces there. The Allies, however, were said to hold over-all artillery superiority.

Dive-bombing attacks by A-36 Invaders on the Littorio and Guidonia airdromes near Rome featured yesterday's Allied air operations. One hangar was destroyed.

An American cruiser joined the big gun duel on the beachhead, swinging in close to shore and blasting away at enemy emplacements in the nearby hills.

RULES TIGHTEN FOR NEW CARS

Civilians Get The Same Number In March As In February

Washington, Feb. 28. (AP)—Tightened controls over the rationing of new passenger cars were announced by the Office of Price Administration today, but the number allotted for sale to civilians in March, 10,000 vehicles, was the same as in February.

OPA directed that its district offices in each state, instead of the local ration boards, issue all ration certificates for new cars hereafter. As in the past, applications will be taken by the local boards, but they will merely forward them to the district office. After assembling the applications, each district office will issue certificates up to the limit of the state quota "to persons with the most immediate essential needs." There will be no county quotas.

A person found eligible by his local board thus might fail to get a certificate, if the state quota was exhausted by the granting of certificates to drivers whom the district office considered more essential.

At the same time, however, OPA revised its rules covering sales of used 1942 passenger cars to provide for freer distribution. Any eligible person who has found a used 1942 automobile for sale will automatically get a ration certificate from his local ration board to buy it, OPA said.

Schools Reopened At Grand Rapids After AFL Recess

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 28. (AP)—Classes will be resumed in Grand Rapids public schools tomorrow morning for the first time since last Wednesday when maintenance workers left their jobs in a dispute involving wages and working conditions.

Assurance that the schools would be opened tomorrow was given late today when members of the Building Service Employees (AFL) Local 139, voted to adjourn, thus ending their meeting of six days duration, termed by the union as a "recess" meeting and not as a "walkout."

Force Of 8,000 Japs Destroyed In Burma Victory

(By The Associated Press)
New Delhi, India, Feb. 28. (AP)—The Allies scored their first major victory in Burma with the destruction of a task force of 8,000 Japanese in two weeks of confused fighting in the dusty choking jungles of Arakan north of Akyab, the Southeast Asia command announced tonight.

The Japanese "gradually were driven back, hemmed in, split up, hunted and killed. Most, with their accustomed tenacity, fought to the death. Some battered and wounded escaped through the jungle to the south. A few surrendered."

A special summary thus pictured the end of an ambitious drive by the force of approximately 8,000 Japanese, who set out to isolate and destroy two Indian divisions, the fifth and seventh, and open the way for a "sweeping advance into India."

Jungle Fighters Isolated
The drive began auspiciously from the Japanese standpoint. Some British units were cut off and were attacked from all sides. The Japanese became "so sure of success they announced it," the special statement said.

But as the British counter-attack developed the Japanese jungle fighters sent to attack the British rear became isolated and were encircled themselves. More than 1,000 of them were killed and about 2,000 were wounded. Today's regular communique said at least 500 were killed in the fighting for Ngayekdaung Pass alone.

Allied casualties were declared to have been about a third as high.

With the enemy threat to the pass dissipated, British and Chinese troops continued to press in upon the Japanese-defended jungles on four different fronts, stretching 500 miles from the area north of Akyab to the Ukawng valley in the north.

LAKES TO GET BIG ICEBREAKER

New Coast Guard Ship Will Be Launched Saturday

Toledo, O., Feb. 28. (AP)—The icebreaker Mackinaw, a $10,000,000 craft with which the coast guard will have a path for iron ore, grain and coal through the Great Lakes, awaits its champagne kiss at a Toledo ship building co. launching Saturday.

The Mackinaw will not be available for service, however, until autumn. M. M. Wilkinson, vice president and general manager of the Toledo firm, said after the launching the Mackinaw will be placed in drydock for fitting and completion.

The ship, designed after a study of similar ships throughout the world, will have a displacement of 5,999 tons. It measures 260 feet long, with a maximum beam of 70 feet. Ship's company will include 12 officers and 164 men.

Mrs. Russell R. Waesche, wife of Admiral Waesche, commandant of the United States Coast Guard, will sponsor the Mackinaw, and her husband will speak at the launching. Others invited include Representative Fred Bradley of Michigan, who aided in obtaining authorization for construction of the ship. Rear Admiral Harvey F. Donohue of the Coast Guard and Johnson and Rear Admiral Robert Gilbert Johnson of Cleveland, secretary of the Lake Carriers Association.

Capital Attorney Is Indicted For Murder Of Doctor

Washington, Feb. 28. (AP)—A District of Columbia grand jury returned a first degree murder indictment today against Robert I. Miller, 67-year-old attorney, in the shooting of Dr. John E. Lind, noted Washington psychiatrist.

A will drawn by Dr. Lind only four days before he was shot to death in his automobile in the downtown shopping section, was filed in district court today leaving his dining room furniture and two framed tapestries to Miller's wife, Marguerite. The remainder of his estate of undisclosed value was left to two sons and a daughter.

Earlier, Miller was freed under $15,000 bond after his arrest on a homicide charge a week ago. He was reported seriously ill at his home and court attorneys said this was a factor in granting his release. The attorney's attending physician indicated that Miller had a heart ailment.

HITLER ALLY EXPECTED TO DESERT SOON

SOVIETS POUR ON PRESSURE WITH AIR ATTACKS

BY JUDSON O'QUINN
London, Feb. 28. (AP)—Under pressure of Soviet air might, Finland appeared moving tonight toward an armistice with Russia, and this prospect that yet another ally would desert Hitler was reported to have caused disorders in satellite Bulgaria.

Bulgaria called more men to arms, the Cairo radio said, to stem spreading clashes between police and partisan bands who were excited by the prospect of Finnish-Russian rapprochement.

Germany meantime took precautions to meet Finnish capitulation and a war correspondent of the German news agency, DNB, said in a Berlin broadcast after a visit to the arctic coast that Nazi troops in Finland and Norway were ready to meet any emergency—even an Allied landing.

Helsinki Clears Debris
Among the many reports of the Finnish-Russian peace negotiations, still in the unofficial stage, was a Stockholm dispatch saying Juho Kosti Paasikivi, Finnish statesman who negotiated the 1940 peace with Russia, may return to Stockholm tomorrow or next day to continue negotiations.

Helsinki meanwhile was engaged in clearing up the debris of a 600-plane Russian attack on the city Saturday night.

Another diplomatic development in London was the arrival of Jan Ciechanowski, Polish ambassador to Washington, who at once went into conference with the Polish government in exile to give the United States' latest views on the Polish-Russian controversy.

There were indications that a series of turbulent Polish cabinet sessions were imminent with Stalin's formal refusal of a Polish compromise offer expected soon.

The Polish cabinet appeared divided on further accession to Russia's demands.

YOUTHS IN JAIL ESCAPE CAUGHT

Three Desperadoes Are Back Behind Bars In Mississippi

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 28. (AP)—Just 47 hours after they sped down the corridor of the Hinds county courthouse, three youthful desperadoes, manacled and held firmly by deputies, were escorted back to the jail and put in solitary confinement tonight.

In their brief hours of liberty they packed enough adventure and danger to last most men a lifetime, but beyond looking a little tired they showed no trace of their experiences. All were taken at the point of guns and all had been shot at many times in the two nights and a day they were roaming the state stealing cars, kidnaping hostages and robbing homes.

Lawrence Motari, 21, spokesman for the gang and regarded as the leader, was handcuffed and escorted separately when they arrived at the jail about 3:45 p. m. Roy Drake, 20, and Ralph Ward, 23, were linked together.

Numbered among their victims in their flight to elude officers and get out of Mississippi, was Miss Orlene McKnight, 16-year-old high school student of near Cleveland. She was held as a hostage for 12 hours and released at Belzoni about 9 o'clock last night.

Miss McKnight, calm through her entire ordeal of accompanying the group of highwaymen, was forced into the family automobile by the men after they had shot her father, Joe McKnight, in the leg, severing a blood vessel, and had stolen his car.

Radium Recovered From London Ruins

London, Feb. 28. (AP)—Demolition workers directed by scientists recovered from bomb demolished Marie Curie Radium Therapy hospital today a steel container holding 355 milligrams of radium valued at over $4,900.

The search continued for 100 milligrams which still are missing. The radium was buried when a direct hit demolished a part of the hospital during a recent German air attack on London.

February Is Disaster Month for Nipponese

BY LEONARD MILLMAN
Associated Press War Editor

Destruction of a force of 8,000 Japanese in the first major Allied victory in Burma climaxes perhaps the costliest month of the war for Japan.

The price was paid not only in ships and planes, but in the flesh and blood of empire.

The Allies completed campaigns in February that cost the lives of around 35,000 Japanese and isolated 30,000 others on Pacific islands where they are being left to starve, surrender, or be

FORTRESSES HIT NAZI GUN COAST

Eighth Airforce Makes 18 Assaults During Month Of February

London, Feb. 28. (AP)—Heavy bombers of the United States Eighth air force spearheaded a series of daylight assaults on enemy installations in northern France today, raising to 18 their record total of operations during February—six more than in any other month.

Working as four separate teams, two formations of Flying Fortresses and one each of Liberators and medium B-26 Marauders were virtually unmolested as they struck at different places along one of the world's most bomb-battered strips—the coast of France.

RAF medium bombers joined in the day's widespread blows against Nazi military objectives, which Prime Minister Churchill has said include long-range rocket-guns and radio-controlled planes.

Loss of six heavy bombers was the largest for operations against Pas de Calais since January 21, when a similar number failed to return.

The Marauder force, over 200-strong, struck the rocket-gun sector and a Nazi air base near Amiens, 40 miles inland. All the medium bombers returned, despite reports of some heavy flak.

The offensive followed a week-end lull that had interrupted the heaviest sustained bombardment in history—the six-day battering of German aircraft factories last week.

Tonight Berlin, Frankfurt, Cologne, Bremen, Hamburg and other German radio stations went off the air, indicating the RAF might be visiting Germany.

Marijuana Worth $2,500 Seized In Raids At Detroit

Detroit, Feb. 28. (AP)—Ralph H. Oyler, district supervisor of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, said today his agents had seized $2,500 worth of marijuana and marijuana cigarettes in arresting five war plant employees accused of peddling the weed to their fellow-workers.

William Lawson, 26, employed by the Chrysler Corp. pleaded guilty before U. S. District Judge Ernest A. O'Brien Jan. 11 and was held in default of $5,000 bond.

Reginald Joseph Ventour, 25, employed at the Ford Rouge plant, James E. Willis, 21, a Termost Manufacturing Co. employee, and James Lee, 23, a worker at the Packard Motor Co. plant, were held for $2,500 bond. Also arrested was Fred Butler, 25, another Termost worker, whose bond was placed at $2,500.

PSKOV NEARLY ENCIRCLED BY RUSSIAN ARMY

NAZIS ATTEMPT TO HOLD BASE; COST IS TERRIFIC

BY TOM YARBROUGH
London, Tuesday, Feb. 29. (AP)—The Red army announced at midnight that its trip-hammer advance upon Pskov had reached to within six miles of that railway bastion of the Baltic region which the Nazis turned into a concentration camp for German soldiers who mutinied on the Leningrad front in January, and that their enemy divisions had been routed by a Russian column advancing on Novorzh, 70 miles to the southeast.

The German troops in the line struggled at bloody cost to retain Pskov, on which much of their Baltic defense is predicated, but the Soviet communique broadcast from Moscow told of the slaughter of 700 Germans at one point, 500 at another, a battalion at still another and said everywhere the enemy was being forced to surrender, retreat or die. In vast numbers, the Germans were doing all three.

The continuing Soviet offensive has gained up to 25 miles in a day's time, liberated 450 communities close around Pskov, and another 200 towns in the region near Novorzh, the announcement said.

Germans Deserting
The closest announced approach to Pskov came with the capture of Torsheino, railway station 30 miles northeast of the city on the Luga line. Due east, on the Staraya Russa line, the Soviets were declared to have taken the station of Karamyshevo, 10 miles from Pskov.

In taking Karamyshevo and the nearby town of Slavovichi the Russians forced the defended river Cherekh, the communique said. This stream meanders north and northwest into the Velikaya river five miles directly south of Pskov.

In the German ranks, the Soviet communique declared, desertion and defeatism are becoming widespread and the prisons of Pskov are filled to overflowing with these men. In the last two weeks in January 1,200 from the Leningrad front alone were sent to Pskov in irons, it said, and others who refused to fight at various times have been disarmed and interned there.

Need For Training Planes Is Filled; 3 Contracts Halted

Washington, Feb. 28. (AP)—The army announced today termination of contracts with three companies for building training planes, in line with the gradual conversion of production from training to combat type aircraft.

At the outset of the war, about 60 per cent of aircraft production was devoted to training planes, but this percentage has been changing to put emphasis on the construction of fighter and bomber types.

Today's war department announcement said that the need of the army air forces for training planes had been met and that workers on that type of planes will turn to building combat ships.

Another 13 letters and telegrams received similar treatment and went back to the files, Wayne Otis, Lansing manager of the Citizens Loan and Investment Corp., testifying that he had dictated them.

Otis testified he had attended meetings with other finance company officials in Detroit in 1939, but that he could not recall many of the persons who were there.

Three Bills Involved
Fred Fred L. Chase, secretary of the senate, Sigler drew historical testimony concerning the adoption of three bills mentioned specifically in the conspiracy warrant, and disclosed the subject of two of the "diverse other measures and bills" which the warrant had mentioned vaguely as having been affected by bribery of legislators.

They were a bill introduced by Senator George P. McCullum, Ann Arbor Republican, proposing a 3 per cent excise tax on income from small loan and finance companies, and a bill introduced by Senators Carl P. DeLano, Kalamazoo, and Joseph A. Baldwin, Albion, Republicans, proposing to fix interest rates of 1 to 1 3/4 per cent a month on financing of installment purchases ranging from $300 to $2,000. Both measures were killed in the senate state affairs committee, of which two of the defendants were members at the time.

Those defendants are Senators Jerry T. Loeis, Bay City Republican, and Charles C. Diggs, Detroit Democrat.

The other three bills adopted by the legislature and identified in warrant fixed small loan interest rates and restricted chattel mortgage deficiency judgments, and the form of installment purchase contracts.

Judge Carr overruled objections of defense attorneys, and ordered that night as well as day sessions of the hearing start tomorrow, and extend through its duration of a week or more.

Of the 26 respondents named, two have pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentence. Two are outside the United States and a fifth was reported ill in a Fort Wayne hospital. Those outside the country are former Senator D. Stephen Benzie, of Norway, managing a lumber camp in Mexico and whose extradition is sought, and former Rep. Leodore A. Weza, who is serving with the army in Alaska.

Rep. Adam W. Sumeracki, Detroit Democrat, who is in the army, sent word he had obtained a furlough to surrender to the warrant and participate in the hearing, but was stricken with illness, and would not arrive until later.

Ernest J. Prev, vice president of the General Finance Corp., Detroit, and former Rep. Miles M. Callaghan, Reed City, have pleaded guilty.

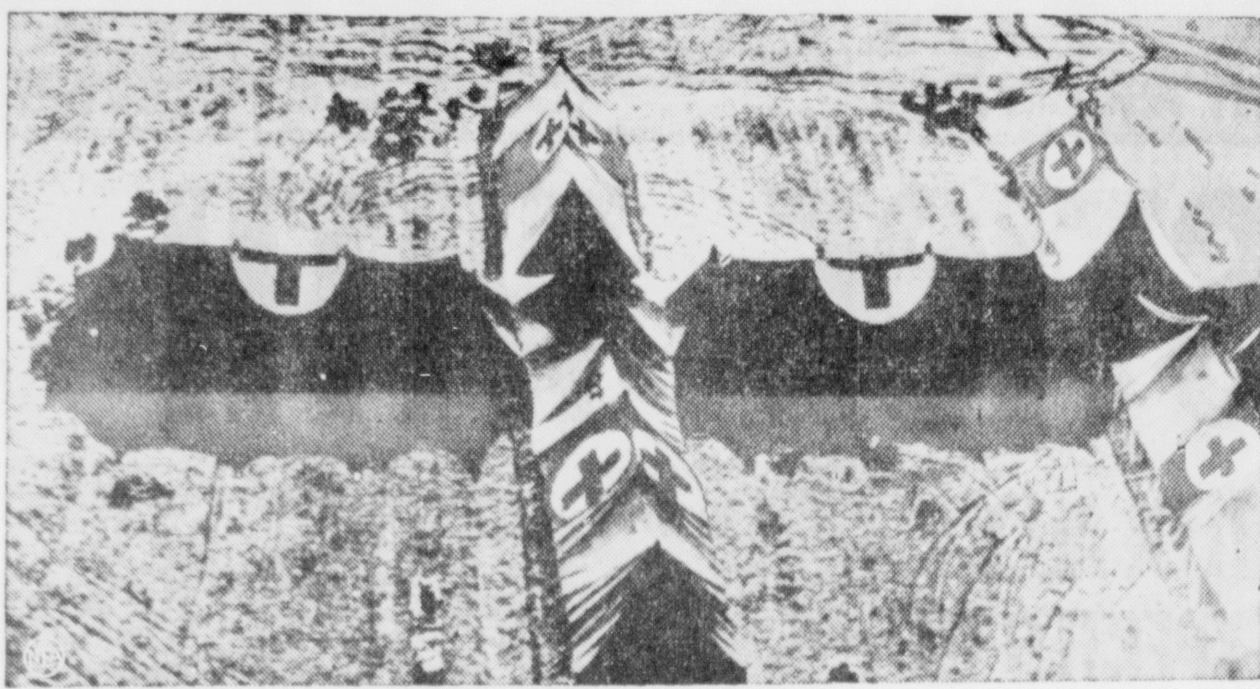

Kent County Test Shows Old Liners Still Control GOP

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 28. (AP)—Kent county's old line Republicans, endorsed by National Committeeman Frank D. McKay, won control of the party's county convention today in a meeting of the Kent county Republican committee.

A home front faction led by Oscar Waer, county chairman, forced an apportionment plan for selecting delegates to the state convention—delegates who are chosen in the county convention—but it was the old line group's apportionment plan which was approved.

The home front plan would have provided 39 delegates from Grand Rapids and 24 from outlying townships. The plan adopted gives Grand Rapids only 35 delegates.

War Veterans Promised Break on Federal Jobs

Washington, Feb. 28. (AP)—President Roosevelt laid down today as a flat government policy the principle that ex-service men shall get preference in federal employment.

Furthermore, Mr. Roosevelt asked congress for legislation which would empower the president for the rest of the war and five years afterward, to designate federal jobs which would be available exclusively to veterans.

DRAFT SPEEDUP TO FORM POOL

Marquette Center Runs 2,000 Examinations Daily In March

Lansing, Feb. 28. (AP)—The state selective service headquarters sent orders today to draft boards throughout the state to step up immediately the rate of reclassification of registrants for the draft to meet increasingly heavy demands of the armed forces.

Brig. Gen. Leroy Pearson, state director, said this meant that some 230,000 cases would be considered for reclassification but that this by no means should be interpreted as meaning that all of these men would be sent to induction centers for pre-induction examinations.

He said a schedule of 2,000 examinations a day at the Detroit and Marquette induction centers would get under way about March 15 and extend into April to allow Michigan's draft setup to create a "pool" of reserve men known to be physically acceptable for armed service so that Michigan could meet its draft quotas in the future.

Iron Mountain—At the annual meeting of the Pine Grove Country club it was reported that members of the club had presented to it 250 shares of the 552 outstanding in the Pine Grove Park association.

While the members of the Golf club and the shareholders in the Park association have been, for the most part, identical, up to about two years ago the Golf club had no part in the ownership of the grounds and club house. At that time an appeal to shareholders to turn in their shares to the club brought in about fifty. During the past three or four months an intensive effort to secure them yielded nearly 200. Pledges have been made of a sufficient number of additional shares to give the club a majority. The shares acquired, and those held in trust for the Golf club, and voted, by a board of trustees of five members, J. D. Benham, W. B. Thompson, Dr. W. H. Huron, Martin Thomas and Carl Miller. The Park association has been inactive in recent years.

The program was as follows: Flag Salute—Assembly. Dedication to Founders Day—Jeanne M. Huss. During this dedication candles, which surrounded the cake, were lighted by Mrs. Elmer Johnson, the acting president, and Mrs. John Barr, the past president. Candles were dedicated to the two founders of the National Organization—Alice McLellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst—and to the acting and past president of the Sunnyside Organization. Three red, white, and blue candles were lighted in honor of the men and women serving their country on the same front and overseas.

Song—"My Tribute"—Assembly. Consoling the Sick—Mrs. Arthur Sundquist.

Song—"Grandfather's Clock"—Mrs. R. N. Dahlberg, Mrs. Elbrath Peterson and Mrs. Frank Konkel. Reducing Diet—Mrs. John Barr.

Song—"Rock Me To Sleep, Mother Mine"—Mrs. Elbrath Peterson and Mrs. Frank Konkel accompanied by Mrs. R. A. Dahlberg.

Song—"God Bless America"—Assembly. Penny Parade—Accompanied by Mrs. R. N. Dahlberg.

Home Of The Future Is Described To Town Hall

Provocative is the word for Wilfrid Laurier Husband's illustrated lecture "How America Lives—Today and Tomorrow", presented to Escanaba Town Hall last night in Wm. W. Oliver auditorium.

And provocative his lecture and pictures were designed to be. For no matter whether you are content in your "traditional" house of unidentifiable architecture, Husband left the threat that functional design will get you in the postwar period no matter how much you resist.

All of which seems a destined end for home owners, already inoculated with the streamlined beauty of functional cars, trains, airplanes, refrigerators, bathtubs and other necessities. However, as Husband pointed out, most of our homes are still "of the horse and buggy" period.

Etsall Shepley, 60, Dies At Osier Home, Funeral Wednesday

Etsall Erven Shepley, 60, died Sunday afternoon at 1:55 o'clock at his home in Osier. His death followed an illness of many years which had kept him bed-ridden for the past six months.

He was born in Glenwood, Ontario, Canada, August 27, 1883, and came to Delta county when he was 26 years old. He had lived at Osier, where he was a farmer and a woods worker for the past 36 years.

Surviving are his wife, five daughters and two sons, Mrs. M. Fralick, Gwin; Mrs. C. Brown and Mrs. H. Seymour, North Delta; Mrs. R. Williams of Forest Lake; Beulah, at home; William of Shingleton, and Doyle, who is in the United States Army, overseas. He also leaves twelve grandchildren and three brothers and five sisters. The brothers and sisters live in Canada, with the exception of Andrew, of North Delta.

The body was taken to the Anderson funeral home for preparation for burial and will be returned to the family home at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the home and at 2 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal church in Trenary. Rev. Worth of Gwin officiating. Burial will be in Trenary cemetery.

Pike Lakes Will Be Closed On March 15

Lansing—With pike lakes closed to fishing after March 15 until May 15 for the spawning season, and unclassified lakes closed between March 31 and June 25, Michigan anglers will have to be content to fish for a few weeks for certain species on the Great Lakes, on non-trout streams and on certain designated lakes that have no closed season.

In these waters black bass, bluegills and sunfish may not be taken until the opening of the spring fishing season. Species which may be taken include northern and walleyed pike, white bass, crappie, yellow perch, muskellunge, lake trout, and several other species.

FORMS MARINE BUREAU

Sault Ste. Marie—The Soo Marine Bureau, an organization with a long-time contract with the Lake Carriers' Association to act as agent with all ore carrying vessels on the Great Lakes, has been incorporated here. It is to be under management of R. E. Wylie, who for 28 years was manager of the Postal Telegraph and Canadian Pacific communication system in this city.

For the past seven weeks Mr. Wylie has been acting as agent of CPR communications at North Bay, Ontario, but resigned this week to return to the Sault and make preparations for the opening of the marine season perhaps in late March.

The Soo Marine Bureau will maintain a 24-hour service at the St. Mary's Falls ship canal during the navigation season to serve the steamship companies.

As well as being representative of the steamship companies belonging to the Lake Carriers, the Soo Marine Bureau will also represent practically all steamship companies which are not members of the association. These include several of the larger Canadian steamship companies as well as package freighters and oil company vessels.

The air lines of the future will quite likely have two or three decks, instead of the present one.

manager, introduced Husband. And as a reminder that a functional postwar home wouldn't fit into an unplanned landscape, the Town Hall audience was presented with a copy of "Planning With You," a booklet prepared by the editors of The Architectural Forum and distributed by the Escanaba city council.

Speaking of the need for city planning, Husband later in his talk asserted that without modern city planning and enforcement of zoning, "your modern glass living room wall will open on a vista of the neighbor's ash cans and garbage."

Husband spent the weekend in Escanaba and from his visit here he said there is "an ideal geographical location for future development, both as a resort and because of its industrial possibilities". All through his talk ran the theme of breaking with the past tradition in our conception of housing, and to consider the changes to come and be prepared to accept them with open mind.

Prefabrication, the new plastics were mentioned as only a part of what the future will bring in revolutionizing the American home. Our homes cost too much for what we get from them, he said, and said that with the development of new methods and new techniques there will come "the greatest renaissance in home building we have ever experienced."

"We should declare war on ugliness in the American scene. We should take advantage of our rich architectural talent so the postwar home will be beautiful as well as durable. Out should come the slums, the hotdog stands, the sign boards along our public streets and highways," Husband urged.

City planning is necessary to correct "the crazy quilt of overcrowded cities which will plague future generations", he added.

Public apathy toward housing must be overcome, and every city should have a housing authority, he continued. Realization of such a plan must have the support of the people, a support which can be attained through enthusiasm of organizations.

Supplementing his talk, Husband presented motion pictures and slides in color illustrating some of the outstanding examples of modern architecture in America, the work of Frank Lloyd Wright, Walter Gropius, Carl Koch, William Lescaze, Eliel Saarinen, George Fred Keck, Richard Neutra, Norman Bel Geddes and others.

Town Hall's audience would have felt more at home if there had been at least one "traditional" Cape Cod cottage sandwiched in somewhere in the parade of functional design. Nevertheless, Husband's talk was provocative and even brought a laugh now and again—especially the movie sequence of a "vitamin pill" dinner party of the future.

The musical program preceding the speaker was presented by the music department of the public schools. Included were numbers by the Ninth grade Girls Glee Club directed by Miss Betty Murr, and the Junior high school band directed by Frank Karas.

Captured Prisoners Given A Scare By Mt. Clemens Officer

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Feb. 28. (AP)—Undersheriff Harley Ensign's three prisoners trembled pale when he carelessly tossed a briefcase containing safe-cracking tools into his car as he loaded them into it for the trip to jail.

But nothing happened. Ensign had removed a small bottle of Nitroglycerine from the briefcase after some small boys found it Sunday, near Thirteenth Mile road and M-97.

Ensign and two other deputies waited until the three men drove up in a car to reclaim the tools from their hiding place, arrested them after spraying the automobile with sub-machine gun bullets.

Those arrested gave their names as Peter Zanger, 44; Joseph Murray, 26, and Howard Bierbauer, 42.

Zanger has served several years in the State Branch Prison at Marquette. Nearly 24 years ago he became the first felon in the U. S. to be convicted on fingerprint evidence alone, winning probation by confessing to a burglary charge "in the interest of science."

Lake Trout Moves Forty Miles Away

Marquette—One of seven hundred tagged lake trout released May 13, 1941 at Munising by the fish division of the conservation department was caught approximately forty miles away by a commercial fisherman a mile off Little Presque Isle in Lake Superior.

When caught the fish weighed 14 ounces and was 16 1/2 inches long, showing a gain of 10.2 ounces in weight and 6 1/2 inches in length in the two and one half years it was free.

This fish was one hatched at Thompson hatchery from eggs taken from Lake Michigan in the fall of 1938. It was transferred to Marquette as a fingerling and kept there until planted.

News From Men In The Service

Sgt. Fred Fredrickson of Escanaba, for the past 18 months serving in the wilds of India and Burma with an engineering battalion in the battle to keep open the vital supply lines to the Chinese, has been transferred to the enlisted reserve and has returned here. As a member of the enlisted reserve he can be called back for duty. He is 40 years old.

Speaking yesterday noon to the Escanaba Rotary club, Sgt. Fredrickson told of life in the North Burma jungle where, under the command of General "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, American forces are working and fighting to keep open supply routes into China. Of his two years in the service, Sgt. Fredrickson spent 18 months in India and Burma.

It is a country where the drinking water, such as it is, is warm and a piece of ice would be valuable. There Americans expose themselves slowly to the hot sun until they become tanned and acclimated. There "one old American box car would be a first class coach in India," Sgt. Fredrickson said.

The monsoon rains come in September. The water pours out of a clear sky, and the year before the total rainfall was 750 inches. Back in 1929 it rained 900 inches, Sgt. Fredrickson was told.

"The rain caves in the banks along the roads and the men work night and day to keep the supply lines open. We didn't wear raincoats, but wore our woolen sweat-shirts. It was no use trying to keep dry."

"There would be deep mud and then the sun would come out blazing hot, making a crust on top. That was one place you could walk in mud and kick up dust at the same time," Sgt. Fredrickson added.

The people of India are desperately poor and half-starved, he said. Of the 350 million people in that country "350 million are beggars." The people look as if they were slowly starving, and many are crippled.

The Chinese soldiers are tough and fearless, and well equipped by the Americans, whom they look upon as their superiors. "They have great possibilities," Sgt. Fredrickson said.

In response to questions, he added that relations between the American and British fighting men in India were sometimes not cordial. The British seem unable to understand the equality that marks the conduct between the American officers and men, who eat, sleep, smoke and work together. The higher pay the American receives is also "a sore point," he said.

"The close association between the officers and men does not mean laxity. Rather it raises morale. It does not harm discipline," Sgt. Fredrickson said.

The Americans have the best of equipment and good medical care, and while they did not see the Red Cross in North Burma, the Red Cross "is doing a fine job at Calcutta," he added. In the jungles of North Burma, take-off point for supplies rolling into China, the nights are cold because of the altitude, but the days are hot and rainy.

Prized souvenir of his months in the jungle is a Gurkha knife, gift of one of this tribe of jungle headhunters. The savages are employed in carrying and packing, and have been friendly. The natives in general seem inclined to turn to the Americans, but have antipathy for the British.

Miami, Fla.—Seaman 2/C Robert R. Brinker, U. S. Coast Guard, son of Mrs. Lillian Brinker, 1308 South 11th avenue, Escanaba, Mich., is receiving intensified training in anti-submarine warfare methods at the submarine chaser training center, Miami.

Seaman Brinker, 21, enlisted in the Coast Guard in August, 1942, and reported to the Miami center in January, 1944.

Sgt. Swen Dahlquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dahlquist of 1329 Stephenson avenue, has arrived in England. His parents have been informed. Previously Sgt. Dahlquist was stationed in California. He has been in the army one and one-half years.

U. S. Navy Receiving Public Plaudits Now

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—In the humiliating aftermath of Pearl Harbor, the commanders of America's battle fleet were subjected to criticism from many sources. Perhaps, it was intimated, our entire method of fleet operation was wrong.

Look, said some critics, at the British. Under their system, the Admiralty in London is in almost constant communication with fleet units so that the whereabouts of every ship is known.

At almost every hour, direction comes from this highly secret brain in London. After the Pearl Harbor attack, Naval headquarters in Washington did not know the location of one of the major task forces of the Pacific Fleet.

However, critics of our Navy system have long since been refuted. If any further proof of its efficiency were needed, the success of the attacks on the Marshalls, Truk and Eniwetok has clinched the argument.

Yet, even today, few people realize the degree of independence under which our Naval task force commanders operate. They are given orders covering a general objective. Intercept Jap convoy X. Or take objective Y.

Surprise Element Needed

The task-force commander, works, of course, within the scope of the plans carefully drawn up at the Pearl Harbor headquarters of Admiral Nimitz, chief of the Pacific Fleet. But when the commander steams out into the vast loneliness of the Pacific, he is on his own.

His radio will be silent, since the element of surprise is paramount. Sometimes, even after the attack he may not radio back to headquarters lest the Japs obtain information in that way. If a shift in the battle makes it necessary to change plans, the responsibility is his.

There is something peculiarly American in this system, calling forth all of a man's initiative and daring and imagination. Quite apart from the geographic necessities enforced by operations over such an enormous area, it is a system singularly adapted to bringing out the qualities we like to think of as American.

You pick your men with the utmost care and then you entrust to them the fate of the operation. That has been one evidence of the tough-minded genius of Admiral King, Chief of Naval Operations. He has selected men who can win battles. Admiral Spruance did a masterful job in the Marshalls.

Planning at headquarters is important, of course. How many months of planning went into the Marshalls-Truk operations is doubtless a military secret. But it was a long time. In that planning and intensive preparation, all top Navy men participated.

Takes Long Preparation

The need for lengthy preparation is a counter to the new wave of optimism that has come out of the recent successes. In the Marianas Islands, to the north of the Marshalls, are to be attacked next, then the same amount of planning and preparation must precede the attack. Perhaps an even more thorough preparation would be necessary, since the taking of the Marianas poses, in some ways, a more difficult problem than the capture of the Marshalls.

And the Marianas are a long way, both physically and strategically, from Japan's inner line of defense. That line is bounded by Formosa, North China, Manchukuo and Japan proper. It will be a very tough nut to crack.

With no regard for the lives of their men, the Jap military will abandon one outpost after another to fight a last-ditch action, with starvation as the alternative. We are beginning to pinch off some of these outposts with relatively small losses. Thousands of Japs are starving to death at Rabaul. The same technique used there is seemingly to be applied at Truk.

But all this takes time. The rate of progress in the war in the Pacific is slow.

TAX PAYMENTS TOP LAST YEAR

City Tax Collections At
98.8%; County-School
Stands at 92.4%

Collections of city and county and school taxes in the city of Escanaba yesterday were reported by City Treasurer A. J. Manley's office at the highest in history, indicating generally better economic conditions here.

The collections of taxes through the city treasurer's office to February 15 are as follows:

City taxes—94.8 per cent or $105,218.45 of a total budget of $110,950.07.

County and school taxes—92.4 per cent or $136,055.79 of a total budget of $147,242.62.

Last year to the same date the collections were, for city taxes, 92.2 per cent, and for the county and school taxes, 89.8 per cent.

It is interesting to note that last year, because of the dock project employment provided, the payment of taxes was believed to have hit an all-time high. This year, however, the tax collections are above last year for the February 15 date, and for the city at least, better than the total collections last year. The total collections last year were 93.6 per cent for the city, and 92.6 per cent for the county and school taxes.

In Escanaba taxes may continue to be paid at the office of the city treasurer to March 15. On that date the tax rolls will be turned over to the county treasurer as delinquent and taxes paid thereafter will be assessed interest of one-half of one per cent a month from March 1.

The city treasurer's office will notify by mail all delinquent 1943 tax accounts in Escanaba, including paving assessments. These notices are expected to be out about March 5.

John F. Harkins, 64, Dies In Manistique

John F. Harkins, 64, of Manistique, died at 6:30 o'clock Monday morning at the Shaw hospital. He had been ill for the past three months, suffering from a heart ailment.

Mr. Harkins was born at St. James, Mich., on March 31, 1879.

The body was brought here to the Alto funeral home where it will be in state this evening. Services will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church, the Very Rev. Fr. Thomas A. Kennedy officiating, and burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Surviving are the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Rose Wittie and Miss Sophia Harkins, of Milwaukee; Mrs. Ida Stevenson, Chicago and Edward and Peter Harkins and Mrs. Elizabeth Gilmore, of Escanaba; and a niece, Miss Ethel R. Gilmore, also of Escanaba.

Europe has been slowed. The degree of opposition put up by the Germans in Southern Italy has been a surprise to our military planners. Hence, the day when we can release our full strength against the fanatical, barbaric enemy in the Pacific may be delayed.

And the evidence mounts that the Japs are counting on our stopping short of the final goal. The Jap radio puts on excellent current jazz and swing for our boys in the Pacific. In between "Paper Doll" and "You'd Be So Nice To Come Home To," the announcer, in smooth English, asks what Americans are doing so far from home in a tropical wilderness, advises them to get out.

Our military planners know the importance of timing. They want to get on with the war just as fast as possible.

Report to the Nation:

When the 4th War Loan Ended— Our Fighting Men Kept Firing!

News that the 4th War Loan goal of $14,000,000 has been reached and passed will cheer American boys from Italy to the Marshalls. But they will hear the news not only over sputtering radios but over the din of battle.

For the war still goes on with ever mounting fury. And that means that our War Bond buying must go on unabated, too.

To the millions who bought extra War Bonds in this drive, all America gives thanks.

To the 5,000,000 and more volunteer workers who contributed their time and abilities to make the drive a success, your Government and your fighting men give thanks.

To the thousands of patriotic newspapers, magazines, radio stations and networks, members of the motion picture industry, the outdoor industry, advertisers and agencies, retail stores, banks, post offices, credit unions, building and loan associations and farm credit associations, the Nation gives thanks.

Once again Americans have proved their determination to "back the attack" to the full.

But the attack goes on

Look at Italy. When the 4th War Loan drive ended at midnight February 15, the drive on Rome was still going on. American boys were still crouching in water-filled foxholes—clinging with bitter and bloody tenacity to a beachhead the Germans were equally determined to take back. Thus on the same midnight that witnessed the end of the 4th War Loan drive, the hands of the clock met like shears to snip the lives of scores of American boys engaged in the March on Rome. And the fight goes on.

Look at Japan. At the same hour that saw the end of the 4th War Loan, the "March of Death" that shocked all America to a realization of Jap brutality to American prisoners of war—the march was still going on.

To liberate those heroes of Bataan and Corregidor before it is "too late," other American boys stormed and took the Marshalls on the road to Tokyo.

But that March to Tokyo—still 2,000 miles away—that march goes on.

And we on the home front

—can we afford to stop now that the 4th War Loan is history, while our all-important job of supplying and financing this costliest war of all time still goes on? We have won a home front battle here, yes.

But just as our boys continue even more vigorously once they have established a beachhead, so we must continue to build on the success we have already achieved.

Our job goes on

The Bonds we bought last week and the week before are today's exploding bombs and shells, and spent bullets can never be used again. We must provide for tomorrow, too. The need for new guns, planes, ships and tanks still goes on.

For the war still goes on with ever mounting fury. So while all of those on the home front who have bought Bonds and have worked so hard to make the 4th War Loan drive a success have earned the Nation's thanks, none of us can afford to forget that our home front job, including Bond buying, also still goes on!

Railroads Seek Labor

AMERICAN railroads, now short about 100,000 workers and facing the loss of an additional 85,000 men in the next six months, will launch a nationwide campaign soon to recruit labor.

Labor shortages are delaying train and causing road and equipment maintenance to be deferred. The average work week on the railroads has climbed to 52 hours, among the highest of any industry.

The railroads have appealed to the Selective Service for deferment of essential workers, but they have received scant consideration of their plight. While the labor supply is declining, the carriers continue to have peak freight and passenger business. For instance, the movement of coal is running 10 per cent ahead of last February; refrigerated traffic is 15 per cent ahead of a year ago; and stock movements are up 16 per cent. Passenger business in January increased 24 per cent compared with the like month last year.

The railroads, as the backbone of the nation's transportation system, are as essential to the war effort as the most vital industries. The lack of crews is now delaying the movement of trains, hauling troops and materials in a great emergency when time is a most important element.

Falangist Exposed

THERE is some encouragement to be derived from Attorney General Biddle's recent castigation of the Falangist movement as the Spanish variety of Nazi-Fascism. It gives hope that the United States, particularly the state department, will finally come around to perform the painful but necessary duty of disavowing Fascism whenever and wherever it appears.

It is the Falangist movement that has crossed the Atlantic and is causing us a lot of trouble in Argentina and in some other places in South America. It is this same movement which has helped to sustain Franco in power in Spain, and it is this same Franco who has been playing hand-in-glove with the Axis while professing neutrality in order to obtain supplies from America and Britain.

We have been stung every time we have endeavored to do business with or appease the Fascists. Our long attempts to win Vichy over to our side left only a sour taste. We are running into similar disappointments with our efforts to use Badoglio and the other Fascists in Italy. Unless we dump Franco and his Falangists overboard soon, we shall also find ourselves in the sorry predicament of having helped a Nazi-Fascist regime to survive in Spain after we have fought a war to exterminate the same brand of totalitarian tyranny in other parts of the world.

South Lures Industry

SUNDAY'S issue of the Escanaba Daily Press carried a news story telling how Columbia, a city of 4,000 in Mississippi, undertook with considerable success a community program to balance agriculture with industry.

Columbia's first move was to subscribe public money to build an industrial plant to attract out-of-state manufacturers, and was successful in bringing in a shirt factory with a sizable payroll. At the same time, an agricultural diversification program has been carried out.

What Columbia, Miss., has done is very similar to the industrial-agricultural expansion program launched within the past year by the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, with the cooperation of the City of Escanaba. Business and professional interests contributed to an industrial fund which was used to acquire the old tannery to house the Lambert Novelty Mirror Works and the City of Escanaba purchased the former Pontiac garage as a site for the Venus Foundation Garment company. A few weeks ago, the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce decided to launch an agricultural program to attract additional farmers to this area.

More small industries could be attracted here, according to the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, if factory sites were available. This suggests an idea for postwar planners here. If public funds are to be expended to take up a temporary slack in employment after the war, wouldn't it be advisable to erect an industrial building to be leased to new industries? Such a work-relief project would furnish employment long after the construction job is completed.

They're Interested

THE argument that service men are not interested in the political campaigns back home does not hold water in the light of the announcement made this week by Secretary of State Gust H. Hartman.

The Michigan legislature, at its special session, revised the election laws to advance the primary from September to July so that those serving overseas would have time to receive and return ballots to be counted in the November election.

Before the setting up of any special machinery for voting by service men, the secretary of state reveals that about 5,000 applications for absent voters ballots already have been received from the armed forces. The young men know what they are fighting for in this war, and they want to participate in the elections so that they will be more certain to return to the kind of America they envision for the future.

No. 1 Critical Material

WOOD is now the No. 1 critical material in this war, more important at the present time than iron, steel, aluminum and the other metals. Every effort is being made, despite manpower shortages, to increase the production of lumber, pulpwood and other forest products.

But in view of the fact that wood is so important, it is doubly necessary that we exert the greatest effort to prevent any waste of our forest resources by fires. Last year, the number of forest fires in the United States was over 210,000, although our losses in the Upper Peninsula were exceedingly slight. It is estimated that at least 190,000 fires were man-caused, and therefore preventable.

Forest fires affect more than our timber supply. They induce soil erosion and seasonal floods. They destroy wild life. And they complicate the manpower shortage by requesting nearly 1,000,000 man-days each year to fight them.

There is the distinct probability that we shall have unusually dry spring and summer this year and that the fire hazards consequently will be greatly increased. It will be necessary for the public when the fire season comes to keep in mind the need for exercising extreme caution when in the woods.

ICKES THE MYTH

(Detroit Free Press)

People will wake up some morning to discover that no such person as Harold Ickes ever existed. They will learn that he is a half-forgotten character out of Dickens' "Pickwick Papers," or a Gargantuan jest out of some hitherto undiscovered and unexpurgated volume of Rabelais, or perhaps a movie character in a film that was never made. Mr. Ickes is purely a fictional character. He is too remarkable to be true.

He writes fiery letters to all editors, insults everybody, whacks all heads indiscriminately and even writes an autobiography in which, with fiendish glee, he chortles over his genius for malediction and calls himself an old curmudgeon.

Yet by an overwhelming vote the Congress grants his request for an additional secretary and does so as a vote of confidence in him. One GOP representative applauds him as the only man in Washington with the courage of his convictions, and another of the same party demands that he be stopped in his "mad grasp for power." Still another Republican calls him "a fearless, courageous fighting man," while a fourth calls him a Fascist and another calls him a Communist. But he wins the vote.

Yes, Ickes is a mythical bird like the dodo, but not dead.

MORE THAN A PEST

(Grand Rapids Press)

Research scientists truly are wonderful. Through painstaking study they discover, sooner or later, in every creation of nature something of great benefit to mankind. Therefore it is not especially surprising to learn that research scientists of the University of California have found the lowly carp to have some unusual values.

Long regarded as an ordinary pest by the sportsman and as an abomination by the gourmet, the carp has been found by the California researchers to contain an oil four times as rich in vitamin A as that of the sardine. It further has been found the carp is the source of rich poultry food.

Thus the promise is held that the long despised and unwanted carp may yet emerge as a desirable member of the fish family. It may be a little too early to plan on the appearance of "carp farms" devoted to the propagation of the Cyprian carpio, as it is known to the ichthyologist, but the harvesting of carp may yet become a very important segment of the commercial fishing industry, thanks to the research scientists.

WORDS TO WATCH

There is much confusion about the words KILOMETER and ALTIMETER. The prevailing mispronunciations are "kill-OM-uh-ter" and "AL-tuh-MEE-ter." If you will clip this article, you need never be uncertain about the pronunciation of any word ending in -meter.

Such words are divided into two groups: the first designates units of measure; the second designates instruments for measuring, thus:

North American Newspaper Alliance
Washington—The definition of Italian policy to be found in Prime Minister Churchill's speech of last Tuesday has evoked surprise in competent quarters. If trustworthy sources are to be believed, the British and American governments have not finally agreed on leaving King Victor Emmanuel fulfill his royal function until the Allies have won the battle for Rome. Indeed, Washington and London are still trying to solve that very point.

A widely held opinion, in which even the British representatives on the political department of the control commission are reported to share, is to the effect that the fate of the King must be settled before the Allied troops enter the gates of the city. The whole matter is still sub judice.

The three powers' declaration about Italy which was drafted in Moscow, and issued on November 1 provides for "the inclusion in the Italian government of representatives of those sections of the Italian people who have always opposed Fascism." Obviously, the rule of Victor Emmanuel could not survive the enforcement of that article. But, here comes this addendum: "... the three foreign secretaries recognize that, so long as active military operations continue in Italy, the time at which it is possible to give full effect to the principles stated above will be determined by the commander-in-chief on the basis of instructions received through the combined chiefs of staff."

The combined chiefs of staff in Washington and General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson in North Africa are undoubtedly in favor of putting up with the King. Mr. Churchill had their advice in mind when he addressed the House of Commons the other day, but outside of military circles there is a good deal of support for the view that unless the Allied Fifth and Eighth Armies quickly forge ahead toward Rome, the Allies had better conform to the spirit and letter of the Moscow declaration and get rid of the King.

In order to strengthen his argument for keeping the monarch on his shattered throne, the Prime Minister said the other day that "Italian troops had entered our front line and were continuing to fight alongside our men although in one occasion they had suffered heavy losses." That assertion of Mr. Winston Churchill is difficult to substantiate. Only one Italian infantry brigade has so far been under fire. And it had to be withdrawn after a short while.

At the present time, some 250,000 Italian soldiers are at work on the lines of communications, repairing roads, building pipe lines, etc., while Italian warships, with British or American officers on board in some cases, are rendering valuable services in the Mediterranean and elsewhere. Such is the contribution of the Italian armed forces.

According to the British commander-in-chief, that help would cease to be available to the same degree if the king had to leave. Worse, the Allies who today easily keep Sicily and Southern Italy under control with two divisions might have to commit four or five divisions to that task under a new regime.

As against that theory, it is maintained by more politically minded men: That whatever popular backing the house of Savoy still enjoys goes to the dynasty and not to the person of the sovereign; that on February 10, when a large territorial area was taken away from the Allied military government and transferred to the authority of the King and Marshal Badoglio, disappointment and regret were expressed by a majority of the inhabitants.

It is pointed out, also that nothing short of a drastic political change can arouse the peninsula from its indifference and apathy. At the same time, it is conceded that no break with the past is likely to prove useful which has not won the personal assent or Victor Emmanuel. For that reason, the Allies cannot afford to pass over Prince Umberto, the heir apparent. Rather than do away with the rights of his son, the king would resist and create a revolutionary state of affairs.

The whole discussion about the king and the dynasty must be seen against the tragic background of the eventual battle for Rome. It cannot be taken for granted that the Germans will do their best to spare the eternal city. To put it mildly, their natural inclination will be to compel the Allied commanders to assail the old walls with shells and bombs.

Some time ago Pope Pius XII gave all concerned the assurance that no German troops were quartered in Castel Gondolfo. The Germans have managed to nullify the words of the Pontiff. Now, some 5,000 German troops garrison the village and the adjoining villa. Documentary evidence, including photographs, has been received here which tells that tale in full.

measuring instruments—the right-hand words—are accented on the second syllable, as: kuh-ROM-ee-ter. Now, since kilometer is a unit of measuring instruments—the right-hand words—are accented on the second syllable, as: kuh-ROM-ee-ter. Now, since kilometer is a unit of measure—1,000 meters—it belongs in the left-hand group, and must be pronounced: KILL-oh-MEE-ter. And altimeter, since it is an instrument for measuring, belongs in the right-hand group, and must be pronounced: al-TIM-ee-ter.

To show how inflexible this rule is, consider the word MICROMETER. When the word is used to designate a unit of measure—one millionth of a meter—it is pronounced in accordance with the left-hand group: MY-kroe-MEE-ter. But when it designates an instrument for measuring, it is pronounced in accordance with the right-hand group: my-KROM-ee-ter.

The Post-War Period, if Barney Has His Way

Good Morning!

BEHIND THE NEWS — The very brief report of the Delta county board of supervisors' health committee to the county board at its recent meeting has an unusual story behind it. Supervisor Harry Greene of Garden chairman of the health committee, reported that "the matter of accepting the resignation of Dr. M. A. Elstein (county health department director) was taken under consideration." Actually Dr. Elstein's resignation previously was demanded by the committee, and he was given until March 1 to quit the position he has held less than a year. This decision was made at a meeting of the county board's health committee, the lay health committee and a committee of the Delta county Medical Society. Later it was decided to permit Dr. Elstein to stay on until April 1.

A report of that meeting of the committee has never been made public. In fact the committee chairman told those present at the meeting "not to let this get into the press."

Why Dr. Elstein's resignation was demanded has not been divulged by the committee, not even to the county board at its recent meeting.

So far as the health committee's report went, it was the sort of brevity. It did, however, bring out one fact: That whoever is to become health department director succeeding Dr. Elstein will receive a larger salary. For the committee's report reads:

"After discussion, the committee decided that inasmuch as a successor to the present director is not available at the rate of pay fixed in the budget and since the budget cannot be readjusted at this time, to ask Dr. Elstein to continue, on a month to month basis until such a time as a change may be made."

Since there has been no explanation by the health committee why a change is sought, it would be reasonable to assume that the path is being cleared for a successor at higher pay. Meanwhile The Bugler believes that unless the committee volunteers a statement on what it has in mind for the health department in the future, citizens interested in the future of the public health program might demand an explanation.

If the services of the present director are unsatisfactory, let the committee say so—and make the change immediately or accept the "resignation" and leave the post vacant until a new director is obtained. If the county is as financially strapped as it claims, this would be a saving.

If the services of Dr. Elstein are satisfactory but there are other reasons for requesting his resignation, these reasons should be given.

Unless such reasonable questions are answered satisfactorily, the whole affair can be construed as an attempt to take the "public" out of the county's public health program.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—Inside fact is that, on the evening before Senator Barkley delivered his unprecedented attack on the President, his son-in-law, Max Truitt, argued with him all evening, trying to persuade him not to do it.

Barkley, however, was determined. He was tired, half-sick, and not much interested in running for re-election. His wife has been an invalid and, for a while, was almost at death's door. He has been travelling back and forth to Kentucky to see her, which has added to his weariness and mental depression.

For seven long years, the Kentuckian has battled on the Senate floor, trying to keep disgruntled Democratic cohorts in line behind a President with whom he did not always agree but to whom he was always faithful.

Only once during his thirty-one years in Congress has he had any serious opposition at the polls. That was in 1938, when the President threw all his weight and no small amount of money into Kentucky against "Happy" Chandler to re-elect Barkley.

In 1926, when Barkley stepped up from Congressman to Senator, it was Judge Fred Vinson who managed his campaign. Today, Vinson, sitting at the right hand of the President as Economic Stabilizer, is the man largely responsible for persuading him to veto the tax bill. The other man who helped persuade him was another old and intimate friend of Barkley's—Justice James Byrnes. For years they had worked together in the Senate almost as brothers.

That is why some of Barkley's friends were shocked, not by his opposition to the tax-bill veto, but by the fact that he would publicly denounce the man who re-elected him in 1938 and two men with whom he had cooperated for two decades—denouncing them without a word of warning to them.

—TWO TALKS WITH PRESIDENT—

The White House, of course, had ample warning that Barkley was opposed to the veto of the tax bill, but no inkling that the Senate leader, for years Roosevelt's most intimate confidant on Capitol Hill, would suddenly turn against him.

Ten days before the veto message, both Barkley and Speaker Rayburn visited the White House, where Barkley pleaded: "I beg of you, Mr. President, please sign this bill."

The President, however, pointed out that the tax bill was full of loopholes benefitting big business, and maintained that he had to keep faith with the men at the front by raising revenue at home now, not postponing the burden of paying for the war until after the soldiers returned.

Again, just a few days before the veto message was sent to Congress, the President called in Barkley and Speaker Rayburn and let them read the first draft of the message. Both were furious, but the Senate leader gave no hint of resigning his post, even though he noted the sharply worded tone of the message.

However, Barkley did tell Senate friends that the President could get no help from him in sustaining the veto, while Speaker Rayburn quietly spread word that he wouldn't be offended if the veto was over-ridden. This sub-rosa revolt spread like wildfire, long before the veto message actually reached Congress.

—DOUGHTON LED REVOLT—

First to rebel was 80-year-old, tenacious "Muley" Bob Doughton, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, who called a closed-door session of his committee. The session was vehement and bitter.

"I've always gone along with the President before," said the rugged six-foot North Carolina mountaineer. "But this time I'm not going along. I realize it would have been desirable to pass a bigger revenue bill than this one, but when it has been proved that it is impossible to do so, I don't believe in throwing the bill overboard. That is what the President wants, and I have no alternative but to oppose him."

Thunderous applause from the Republicans. Only one Democrat, Representative John Dingell of Michigan, had the courage to defend the President during the name-calling melee which followed.

"I'm going to vote to support the President," announced Dingell, in fighting tones. "I'm getting sick and tired of these everlasting raids on the Social Security tax. I don't give a continental what the rest of you do, but I'm going to fight against over-riding the veto."

Representative Jere Cooper of Tennessee also stood with the President—but silently.

It was significant that when Chairman Doughton called a second secret session of the Ways and Means Committee, both Cooper and Dingell were absent, one of them getting notice of the meeting only after he had left his office.

The old world still is round—except parts of Germany. And next we'll flatten Japan.

ROTARY HEARS HOUSING PLAN

Discusses Postwar Plan For Better Homes In Escanaba

The Escanaba Rotary club in meeting yesterday noon heard and briefly discussed a proposed plan providing for local financing and construction of 25 homes in the postwar period on an experimental basis. The plan was proposed by Charles Gessner, program chairman.

Gessner pointed out that "we are now at the point where we must go beyond a program of window cleaning and odd jobs for war veterans" in Escanaba. He added that postwar competition between cities will be keen, and that the city offering workers an opportunity to own their own homes will have one advantage.

Citing a housing survey made in 1941, Gessner directed attention to the following:

That 50 per cent of the homes in the city are now 40 or more years old; that nine per cent are substandard and considered unfit for occupancy—although occupied; that 20 per cent rent for $10 to $16.50 a month; that 10 1/2 per cent have no inside toilet; 1 1/2 per cent no bath room or are it with more than one family; and that only 59 per cent have central heating.

"There is a tremendous amount of work to be done if we are to provide jobs for our veterans. One of these ways is through better housing. I would suggest that we have a home improvement commission appointed by the city council to complete a housing and zoning survey," Gessner said.

Gessner said that he believed there would be demand for 400 to 600 homes costing about $4,500, and suggested the construction of a group of 25 as an experiment; financed by local banks and loans repaid in 20 years.

In discussion George Bean, city manager, said he believed the demand for a housing improvement committee such as suggested must come from the community rather than from the city council; but added that the city "has acres and acres of desirable land" which might be made available for such an experimental housing project. Coleman Nee suggested that rather than concern itself with housing, the community might better turn its energies toward obtaining additional industries.

(Taylor Henry, who wrote this dispatch, was chief of the Associated Press bureau in Vichy at the time of the German occupation of southern France in November, 1942. After internment at Lourdes, France, and Baden-Baden, Germany, he is now in Portugal awaiting repatriation.)

BY TAYLOR HENRY
Lisbon, Feb. 26. (P)—Leaders of the French underground revolution against Marshal Petain and the Vichy government urgently desire that America and England send them arms and munitions to carry on the struggle, which has already reached the proportions of a real civil war.

Informants who obviously can not be identified have told me recently that enough men already are organized, and all that is needed is for the allies to send them guns and bullets. Underground leaders express gratitude for supplies already coming in by air, but say they are needed in larger quantities.

It is estimated that at least 100,000 Frenchmen, most of them youths, have been taken to the "maquis"—or woods—where they are organized into bands of varying sizes which are in open revolt against the Vichy government and its German partners.

The chief centers of resistance are in northern France around the industrial center of Lille, in central France near Chief of Government Pierre Laval's own neighborhood of Clermont Ferrand, and in the French Alps, particularly in the vicinity of Grenoble.

These bands make their headquarters on isolated farms and in hideouts in the depths of the woods, where the country people keep them advised of activities of the German occupation troops and Joseph Darnand's French gendarmes, otherwise known as the militia.

From these hideouts, they strike quick blows both at German troops and at those Frenchmen cooperating with the Nazis, then fade into the darkness, leaving the enemy groping dizzily, and usually fruitfully, after them.

Up to the present, they have been able to inflict more than 100 times as much damage on the Germans and the Vichy supporters as they have suffered themselves, although they are beginning to suffer more heavily as the civil war spreads.

"We are just waiting for the American landing," one underground leader was quoted as saying. "Our hope is that we don't have to wait too long."

Meantime, they have a three-point program:

1. To strike terror into the heart of the French collaborationists by carefully planned killings of outstanding local supporters of the German occupation regime.

2. To immobilize as many German troops as possible in the heart of France, keeping them away from other fronts by continuing raids against the Nazi forces.

3. To sabotage French war production, which has been handed over to the Germans by the Vichy government. This is made doubly effective in many cases by the co-operation of owners and managers of plants who aid in the sabotage of their own property.

In one instance, which it would be dangerous to deal with more specifically, the son of a large French industrialist who joined the terrorist troops was ordered to blow up his father's plant.

The father simplified the task by getting the night watchman out of the way.

Aboard a British Cruiser in the Mediterranean, Feb. 17 (Delayed) (P)—The tensest time aboard a warship supporting an army with close-in bombardment comes right after the first few broadsides and just before the shore batteries reply.

Like all others, this cruiser, HMS Mauritius, always is in danger from the moment it starts out on a bombardment mission until it returns to port, and even then there is always the air raid threat. But it is just before the inevitable ship-and-shore shell-duel that the awareness of danger becomes translated into a universal tenseness.

Yesterday this ship blasted three German targets inland from Gaeta Point on the coast of Italy. Two were gun batteries and the third was a railroad line over which a huge enemy gun operated.

Cruiser Sat Still

Shepherded by a smoke-laying Royal Navy cutter, the cruiser sat in until it was about nine miles off-shore, felt out the target while observers ashore and in the sky corrected the range, then cut loose with ship-shaking broadsides, throwing salvos of 1,200 pounds of steel again and again from its dozen 6-inch guns.

For fully 10 minutes after the full-scale bombardment was underway, with the Mauritius sitting still in the water to improve accuracy, there was no noticeable sign that any counter fire was coming.

But the men on the bridge knew it would, and so did those below, all the way down to the engineers, where they really have to sweat out the bombardment. And so did those on the ack-ack guns waiting on air attacks, and the lookouts with glasses scouring the sea for signs of a sub.

First sign was a shore smoke screen, a flimsy layer of fleece which lined the water's edge in the distance, but it was enough to hide the enemy guns which were prepared to range in on the cruiser's position.

From the bridge of the Mauritius a message was flashed by blinker lamp to the cutter, which slashed through the water between ship and shore laying an equalizing screen, now that the need for cover was more important than the need for direct observation.

But still the Mauritius lay hove to, rocking with the rebounding impact of each broadside.

Suddenly there was a strange-sounding explosion not far away, which seemed light compared to the broadside thunder. Water blossomed off to the left and ahead. The ships gunnery officer leaped up on the ledge of the bridge, leaning into the wind, and trained his glasses on the spot.

Shells Missed Boat

"Shore batteries have opened up, sir," he shouted to the captain. "First brick splashed about 1,500 yards off the port bow."

Then he continued directing fire on the shore targets, meanwhile swinging his glasses back and forth, watching for the second salvo from the coastal guns.

One fell about 600 yards on the other side.

Already the captain had given orders to get the ship in motion and the pilot was swiftly charting her prospected course.

As she started swinging, the turrets fore and aft, each with three smoking muzzles sticking out, swung the opposite way.

WILL EXPLAIN SPUD CONTEST

Wenner Holds Series Of Meetings In County This Week

E. A. Wenner, Delta county agricultural agent, yesterday announced that he has scheduled a series of six meetings to be held in Delta county this week at which potato growers will be given first-hand information on the new contest sponsored by the Escanaba Potato Boosters association.

The association recently voted to continue the spud growing contest for another four years. This new program has been changed somewhat and will include two contest divisions, one for certified growers and the other for table stock growers.

D. L. Clamahan, potato specialist, will attend all of the meetings and will discuss the potato situation in general and growing practices in particular. Where there are the proper facilities, his talks will be illustrated with slides.

Following is the schedule of meetings:

Wednesday, March 1, 2 p. m., St. Nicholas Church; 7:30 p. m., Kasten school.

Thursday, March 2, 2 p. m., Cornell Town Hall; 7:30 p. m., Flat Rock Town Hall.

Friday, March 3, 2 p. m., Newhall School; 7:30 p. m., Bark River Community Hall.

Car Tag Deadline Ends At Midnight

The deadline for the operation of cars with 1943 license plates is midnight tonight and there will be no extension past the deadline, William Ranquette, branch manager of the department of state office for the sale of license plates, warned yesterday.

The office is located in the Emrich News Agency on Ludington street opposite the old brewery building. Monday was one of the busiest days of the current rush period, when about 875 passenger car plates were sold, plus new tags for commercial vehicles.

Already the captain had given orders to get the ship in motion and the pilot was swiftly charting her prospected course.

Lenore Olson
Is Active in Student Affairs

"I hope to major in chemical engineering," said Lenore Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie W. Olson of 815 Fifth Ave., Escanaba, and a Freshman at the University of Michigan.

"I like Ann Arbor for it seems like a small town and I live with a fine bunch of girls at school," she added.

Lenore Olson is one of the University List Scholarship students at the University of Michigan. These scholarships were offered for the first time last year. The scholarships are to be offered again this year. Each accredited high school in the state is eligible for one of the awards, each of which carries tuition for the first year and is renewable as long as the student makes satisfactory progress. Applications are to be filed not later than March 10, the deadline.

Miss Olson is chairman of the War Activities Council in the Women's League Building where she lives, as well as being treasurer of the Dorn.

Since being here for a semester Miss Olson says that now she realizes how important English and theme writing is in High School. Also, one learns to think originally. Beginning with next semester the young freshman hopes to do more in chemical research work in the Engine School.

Realism...now and after the war

WE HEAR a great deal these days about post-war planning. Some of it seems sound and practical, and some of it is "crystal gazing."

While literally hundreds of public and private agencies are thinking of postwar planning, there are a few things that realistic individuals are sure of. They know that first and foremost the war has to be won and nothing should interfere with all-out efforts toward this end.

They know that economic tides ebb and flow; that the future, like the past, will experience good times and bad; that when bad times come, many people will face economic hardships.

They know that they, like everyone else, are growing older; that the life of any individual is uncertain; and that in accordance with the immutable laws of nature, heads of families will continue to pass on.

Knowing these things, some 30 million people insured by Metropolitan are providing definite measures of protection against these uncertainties of life through some 29 billion dollars of life insurance.

In addition to providing an anchor to windward for the individuals involved and for their families, the thrift of these policyholders is bound to be of a stabilizing character during the postwar period.

This is Postwar Realism of the highest order.

SOLDIER WANTS RIGHT TO VOTE

Wilfred LeGault Writes Views To State Senator

That servicemen should have a say in coming elections is the belief contained in a letter from Pvt. Wilfred LeGault, city, to State Senator J. A. LaFramboise. LeGault also comments on the part mail from home plays in the morale of the serviceman.

A part of the letter follows: "Yes, mail does play a big part here and one can feel awful low and blue when mail call comes and none for you. Especially mail from you folks and dear ones. I know because I've missed many an expected letter, but then the mail service is bad sometimes. At times you get mail from home that was written last month."

"But as long as I get home sometime is all that matters. Safe and sound."

"We feel the same way here about that voting business. If anyone should have the right to choose what is wanted I surely think we should have a bit to say. It's what we're fighting for, isn't it? To be free people of the same rights and to be our own judge for who and what we want. We are still a part of the people even though we are soldiers. We both have the same government and should have an equal right in it."

Sorority Inducts Two Local Girls

Miss Margaret Schenk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schenk, and Miss LaVerne Kinne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kinne were initiated into the Beta Alpha Tau sorority at a formal dinner held at the Northland hotel in Marquette Saturday night. HENRY WYLIE ROTE SPEAKER

County Money Problems Explained To Club Yesterday

Henry Wylie, Escanaba, chairman of the finance committee of the county board of supervisors, presented an interesting and factual word picture of the problem of county finances before the Gladstone Rotary club yesterday noon.

Wylie said he was making an effort to acquaint Delta county residents with workings of the board for he is of the opinion that if the public is interested the problem is half solved.

The speaker said he hoped the residents of the county did not believe all they read in the Daily Press for contrary to a published report the supervisors hold no secret meetings. He said all of the facts and information pertinent to county affairs and actions of the supervisors are contained in the county proceedings published in a weekly newspaper in the county and also in pamphlet form and are available to anyone interested in learning the facts.

Total revenue from taxes on real property this year will run about $13,749.80 to which may be added delinquent taxes paid, officers fees, income from sanatorium bonds and miscellaneous revenue bringing the income to about $141,000.00.

This, the speaker pointed out, will be about $15,000 short of the amount needed to keep the county in the black during the current fiscal year.

How to correct the situation is the problem and Wylie has given to it considerable thought. He said he suggested the acquisition of two townships now in Marquette county but there is a question if this would solve the problem. He suggested getting some of the money returned to townships and cities from liquor license refunds but this was dropped. Money from intangible taxes will provide some revenue, but this will not be sufficient. Another suggestion made was to revalue the county.

The speaker said he felt that a flat increase in valuation of the county would be the best bet and would put the county in the black, but that this would react against school districts.

He said there was also a possibility of state aid on certain welfare expenditures which at the present time we paid in full.

As far as cutting services, Wylie said that all present services are considered essential and none could be eliminated that he knew of without public reaction.

He said the situation arises to some extent from the fact that the state legislature may adopt laws placing in effect certain services which the county must provide but failing to provide some manner in which to finance the service.

Asked about the solvency of townships, the speaker said that except for a few all were solvent and had bank balances ranging from a few hundred dollars to forty thousand dollars.

Walter Hanson, Ishpeming, first president of the Ishpeming Rotary club, and Gordon Kelley, city, were guests at the meeting.

PLAN SET FOR DRAFTEE MEET

Judge Stephens Heads The Informational Committee

Judge W. G. Stephens has accepted the position of coordinator for the pre-induction informational meetings, the first of which will take place March 9, it is announced.

His duties will be that of chairman of the meetings in which men about to be inducted, will ask questions relative to their readjustment to military life. Experts from the armed services, local social agencies, the Red Cross, etc. will be present at the meetings to aid in clearing up questions.

A panel committee to work with Judge Stephens on the informational committee was also appointed by the Civilian Defense committee. Included on this committee are the following persons: Mrs. Lottie Weber, Red Cross and general family problems; William J. Sheehan, attorney, legal questions and civil relief questions; Frank Gierke, Sr., postmaster, soldiers mail and its problems; John Grimley, war veteran, Army problems; Emory Barnes, war veteran, Army problems.

First meeting will take place on March 9 in the county court house. It is being arranged each month to take place soon after the men come back from their pre-induction exams at Marquette, as most of the accepted men will have only a 21 day furlough. The meetings were conceived solely for the purpose of orienting the selectees in the ways of the Army and Navy, assisting him in setting his personal affairs in order before he leaves, and giving him assurance that his family or dependents will be cared for while he is away and advising him on how to secure the services to which his family or dependents are entitled.

Coming here for the initial informational meeting will be Major Samuel F. Oakey, Inf., Area Commander, of Marquette to assist in conducting the session. A Marine or Navy officer is also expected to attend this meeting.

TOKEN SYSTEM NOW UNDERWAY

Off To A Good Start In This Area Monday, Says OPA

Ration token system got off to a good start in this area yesterday with little difficulty reported by merchants and customers.

Ration book holders began something new in rationing when they inaugurated the token system yesterday to supplement stamps in buying nearly all rationed foods. Tokens are now employed in making change for the red and blue stamps in War Ration Book Four.

Under the new procedure, red stamps and red tokens will be used to buy meats, fats and oils. Blue stamps and blue tokens will be used to buy canned fruits and vegetables and other processed foods.

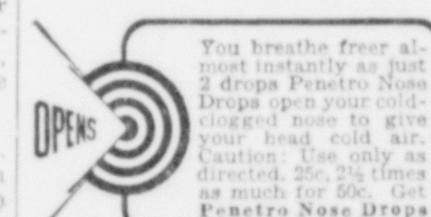

Each red or blue stamp is worth 10 points, regardless of whether the stamps are marked 8, 5, 2 or 1. In making a purchase, the bookholder surrenders the proper stamps or tokens to cover what he buys and will receive change from the storekeeper. If he buys a can of food valued at six points, for example, he will give up one blue stamp worth 10 points. He will be given change of 4 blue tokens, each worth one point.

The validity of red and blue stamps are indicated by letter, number and expiration date, all as announced by the OPA. For example, blue stamps A-8, B-8, C-8, D-8, and E-8 all become valid as of yesterday. The validity period will be 12 weeks, about three times as long as previously. The tokens will be good indefinitely. The longer validity period for the stamps, however, will make unnecessary the storing up or hoarding of tokens by bookholders.

Five blue stamps worth a total of 50 points will become valid on the first of each month. Three red stamps with a total of 30 points, will become valid every two weeks. As before, food allotments will be considered when establishing new point values.

Bookholders will not have to obtain a supply of tokens before shopping. They will obtain tokens for stamps only when purchasing a rationed commodity.

While changing to the new procedure, bookholders will continue to follow the old method in using green and brown stamps. The green stamps K, L, and M in Book Four and brown stamps Y and Z

Detroit Fans Won't See Tigers Much In First Month Of Season

FRONT OFFICE ISN'T PLEASED

Briggs Stadium Booked For Opener April 18; 18 Night Games

BY WATSON SPOELSTRA

Detroit, Feb. 28 (AP)—For the first month of the 1944 season the Detroit Tigers aren't going to see much of Briggs Stadium, and frankly the Detroit front office doesn't like it.

In the American League schedule announced today, the Tigers open the season at home April 18 in a three-game series with the St. Louis Browns. They are home for two additional three-game stands before heading out on the first eastern trip. The Tigers return May 24.

"Naturally we'd like to play as many games as possible at home early in the season," declared General Manager Jack Zelevansky, "particularly this season when there is such a big player turnover and things are so uncertain."

The Tigers have one holiday at home, meeting the New York Yankees in a double-header Memorial Day. They play at Boston July 4 and at Chicago on Labor Day.

Detroit has 12 Sundays at home and will play double bills on all but two. There also are 12 Saturdays, but they aren't so good from the attendance standpoint since the city's industries went off the five-day week.

The Tigers are scheduled for 18 night games, more than they ever had before. Nine of these are at Washington where the Senators will play night ball almost exclusively after the first month of the season.

Detroit hasn't the lights for after-dark play, but there will be seven twilight games at Briggs Stadium. The club experimented with twilight games two seasons ago with surprisingly good results. Last year the duck attendance likewise was well above the mid-week average. One game is scheduled at twilight with each team this season.

With the Tigers finishing at home in September, the Detroit Lions won't be able to move in early next fall for football. The Lions got the jump on the rest of the league in 1943 by taking over Briggs Stadium in September while the Tigers were finishing up in the east.

TRAVELING REDUCED

Chicago, Feb. 28 (AP)—A record number of 106 night games is scheduled for the 1944 American League baseball season, which will open April 18 and end Oct. 31.

The official schedule of 154 games for each team was released today. Like last year's schedule, the 1944 campaign will include three eastern or western swings for the clubs rather than four to help keep traveling at a minimum.

The season will open with Cleveland at Chicago, New York at Boston, St. Louis at Detroit and Philadelphia at Washington.

Only 77 night games were scheduled last year although additional ones were played as the season progressed. A record of 43 night contests is slated at Washington for 1944. Twenty-one will be played at St. Louis and 14 at Cleveland, Philadelphia and Chicago. Seven twilight games are scheduled at Detroit.

Packer Line Coach Goes Over To Giants

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Richard (Red) Smith, former New York Giant quarterback and line coach of the Green Bay Packers for the past nine seasons, today agreed to help Steve Owen tutor the 1944 Giants.

Smith, who resigned his Green Bay duties last December, will coach the Giant linemen, with Tuffy Leemans in charge of the backs.

Modest Lefty Proves Big Hit On War Front

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Lefty Gomez already has returned to this country, so the following letter, written by Fred Corcoran about his activities and Gomez' and Jack Sharkey's in Italy and North Africa, possibly is in the pre-historic class.

But it was just received, and we think it tells more than the modest Lefty would tell about his part in the Red Cross sports show put on by the three men for the soldiers overseas, so we're passing it on.

"We have just returned from a 28-day tour of Italy. Prior to going to Italy we also spent a month in North Africa. Since starting our tour we have had

Many Big Names Are Missing From Baseball Yearbook

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York (AP)—If you can stand another book review today we'd like to tell you about the 1944 edition of Cliff Bloodgood's who's who in baseball, an 80-page effort that has no more plot than the novel guide but which nevertheless tells stories both poignant and sprightly.

The book text is endless columns of figures, the playing records of major league players deemed worthy of inclusion, and each column tells its own story. The real stories, however, are not so much the names and figures in the book, but rather those that aren't.

Every year the natural process of evolution forces the dropping of names long familiar to fans to make room for the new blood continually piped up from the minors to keep the game a game of youth. This year is no exception.

Lefty Gomez. His name and record had been in there so long it seemed as much a fixture as the copyright line. He's missing. And the once great Jimmy Foxx, and Leo Durocher, and Red Rolfe, and Lloyd Waner and Bill Werber, and Freddy Fitzsimmons, and Dolph Camilli. All are gone, most of them for the first time in years and years, with the possibility slim they ever will be back. Most of them have run out their string as players, although Lloyd Waner is going to try it again, and Leo Durocher, night, under duress.

Some New Names. New names, some of which seemed destined to remain a long time until the draft intervened, appeared, and at least three players, who once before had been good enough to make Bloodgood's blue book but who had been dropped, reappeared. They are Ray Mueller of the Cincinnati Reds, Babe Dahlgren of the Philadelphia Phils, and Schoolboy Rowe, also of the Phils.

There are 41 players whose names are appearing for the first time, and already some of them are household words to the fans. There are Detroit's Dick Wakefield and the Yankees' Bill Johnson. There are the Cardinals' Lou Klein and Harry Walker and Alpha Baze and Harry Brecheen. And the Cubs' Harry Lowrey and the Reds' Steve Mesner.

These are just a few of the youngsters replacing the fading or faded stars. There are so many of them, because of the war, jumped into regular spots and earned a right to be included that Bloodgood was in a spot of his own trying to figure out a way to make room for them and still take care of the stars in the service.

He solved this neatly by running just the major league totals of the players who were in the 1943 book but did not play last year because of service in the armed forces. There are 73 in that category.

Thirty-one of the players whose complete records appear have stars after their names indicating they either have gone into the service since the close of last season, or went in during the season. And many minus the stars have been called since the book went to press.

The baseball scene really is a moving picture nowadays.

Big Bobo Is 4-F; Won't Change Suit

Philadelphia, Feb. 28 (AP)—Connie Mack finally heard from Buck Newsum today. Big Bobo passed along the word that he's 4-F.

Bobo telephoned from his home at Hartsville, S. C., and said: "I didn't want to get in touch with you until I found out what my draft board was going to do. Now they've put me in 4-F because of a broken kneecap."

"I'll be up to talk over my contract with you about next Wednesday or Thursday."

Mack obtained Newsum for his Philadelphia Athletics during the winter in a swap with the Washington Senators, for Roger Wolf, another pitcher.

moving pictures of the 1943 World Series as part of the sports film on our program, which also includes films of the outstanding knockout rounds in boxing, starting with the Dempsey-Firpo fight and concluding the second Louis-Schmeling affair. We also have the famous 'long count' of the Dempsey-Tunney bout in slow motion, and have a Byron Nelson golf short to complete the movie part of our program.

"A gab session on sports with Jack Sharkey and Lefty Gomez features the program. I have served as interlocutor, or interviewer. We then conclude with a sports question period. Believe me, Whitney, these boys over here shoot those questions thick and fast. They're hungry for sports news and want to reminisce about their favorite sports."

"Gomez and Sharkey have done a grand job. Lefty's wit is second to none, and his personality in front of the boys and his natural ability to entertain have been in the highlights of the show."

"Of course, Lefty has done a little ribbing of Jack on his bout. It has all been in good-natured fun and Jack's best has been explaining his bouts with Dempsey and Louis. The boys love to see him weave—and you know he was one of the best in the business—as he throws punches and gives them a blow-by-blow description while shadow boxing."

"We met Fidel Labarba, former flyweight champion, in Italy. He has been acting as a judge and refereeing bouts there."

"Every place we have gone the boys want sports continued. That includes the boys in the mud up at the front who have all the worst of it. They write letters to the Stars and Stripes asking them to settle arguments. These questions are answered by some of the sports writers, including Lieut. Jim Burchard, formerly of the New York World Telegram."

"Golf, by the way, gets a good play. The winter tour winners and golf summaries are posted in many of the barracks."

"The spirit of all the boys is great. There is little I can say about the war activity other than just that. We will be leaving after the Allied boxing championships as our three-month tour will be completed. I hope I will see you in New York soon. Sincerely—Fred."

FIVE STRIKES-OUTS IN ROW BY HUBBELL MADE STONEHAM'S EYES POP

By HORACE STONEHAM President New York Giants

Carl Hubbell's phenomenal pitching in the first two innings of the All-Star game of 1934 at the Polo Grounds made my eyes pop out.

I felt a qualm of apprehension as Babe Ruth waddled to the plate with Lou Gehrig on deck and Jimmy Foxx picking out his favorite stick.

Old Square Pants took a hitch in his belt. Zing! Strike one. Two more and Ruth would be out.

The great Foxx, Al Simmons and the rest of the team were in a row, fanned by the Old Man Ticket.

When the Marinette Marines humiliated Menominee, 44 to 26, the other night, Earl (Jug) Girard, of whom you have heard so much within the past couple years, scored 28 points alone. This brought his season's total to 311 points for 18 games. Buddy Russell, the Menominee scoring ace, never got a field goal against the Marines. He drew three quick fouls and was taken out until the third quarter, whereupon he proceeded to draw the fourth and final foul. It was the first time in his varsity career that he failed to score a field goal in a game.

Peter C. Dube, the 65 year old speed skater, has dodged bumpy ice, cracks in the ice, and many pitfalls that are causes of nasty spills for a skater skimming over the ice at a speed of 30 miles an hour, more or less . . . day after day and all without mishap. Sunday Dube was out rabbit hunting, slipped on a pile of loose brush and tore a ligament in his leg. The veteran skater will be laid up for a time but hopes to get back on the blades before the season ends.

Hank Marino, world famous Milwaukee bowler who recently spilled the pins for a fabulous $32 series, including two perfect games, was down in the mouth for several days preceding that fine achievement, bemoaning that he was off his game. In fact, a day or so before Marino hit the jackpot with his $32 series, he called up Ned Day, the noted match champion and a fellow Milwaukeean, and asked Day to substitute for him. Marino felt that he was bowling so poorly that he was hurting his team. Day told the story at his recent exhibition in Manitowish, that engagement, in fact being the reason why Day did not substitute for his friend.

At Percy Jones hospital, Battle Creek, bowling is more than just a sport. It's a powerful medicine that rates with sulfa drugs in preparing the wounded soldiers for return to civilian life. The entries in the Malaria Classic league are all wounded soldiers or malaria victims. One of the doctors at the hospital explains bowlings' contribution to the soldiers' welfare this way: "When a wounded soldier finds that with a little practice he can take his place with other citizens on his company bowling team, he has his handicap in inhibition pretty well licked. He will be ready to compete with his neighbor in business and live with him socially."

The sixth annual world's championship basketball tournament will be held at the Chicago Stadium March 20 to 25, inclusive. Fourteen teams are expected to enter the blue ribbon event, including such outstanding teams as the Fort Wayne Zollners, Oshkosh All Stars, Sheboygan Redskins, Harlem Globe Trotters, New York Eagles, Camp Campbell Tankmen, Indianapolis Pure Oils and others. The tournament will include a long list of world famous basketball stars.

Oil, gold and other ores do not grow for us but I thought of plastics, of plywood and hundreds of things which timber will make. Who knows but that the younger generation will insist on good forests and efficient management of them.

Who knows but that, through them, our fish and game may never fall into the category of lost resources for they may stop erosion and conserve the land. They will make fuel from the farmer's waste products, metal from earth instead of ore.

They will conserve where we wasted, return that which we destroyed. What an opportunity youth will have in their new role of creators instead of destroyers, but how much we oldersters will have to change our thoughts in our teaching of them.

BYRD FAVORED IN GOLF FINALS

New Orleans, Feb. 28 (AP)—Slugging Sammy Byrd, former New York Yankee outfielder, won top honors today in the $5,000 All War Bond open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 285, five less than his nearest competitor, Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio, pro, who scored 290 in the four days play.

Byrd, who expects to be in the navy in three or weeks, fired a one-over-par 73 for the last 18 holes over the wind-swept, tricky city park No. 1 course. Nelson came in with a 70, two under par, but a poor 78 in the second round prevented him from overtaking Byrd who took the lead from Jug McSpaden in the third round yesterday.

McSpaden, who led the field during the first two rounds shot a 77 today, five over par and his worst round of the tournament to finish third, three strokes better than Private Chick Harbert, Lincoln, Neb., who had a 72-hole total of 294.

The victory was worth $1,000 in bonds to Byrd, while Nelson won $750, McSpaden $550; Harbert, $450. Fred Haas, Jr., New Orleans amateur, finished fifth with a total score of 297 and won $100 in bonds.

The war-bond jamboree started with a big auction for the pros last Tuesday night and brought $3,161,000 in bond purchases at the last counting today.

McSpaden's Ideas On Golf Tourney Prizes Are Sound

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Having early in life acquired the nagging habit of eating, Jug McSpaden naturally is somewhat concerned over the prospect of being forced to dispense with this luxury, something he will have to do if he continues to try to earn his living playing tournament golf for war bond prizes only.

We think the pro golfers have gone more all out in their activities in connection with the war effort than any other group of sports performers, in that they have donated their time and services to a point where they're practically denuding themselves of their means of livelihood.

Of course they are paid off in war bonds in the tournaments, which is fine up to a certain point. But tournament prize money is the same as salary to a lot of these wandering minstrels, and although war bonds are as good as gold they aren't ready cash, unless the owner cashes them in, in which case he's labeled a heel.

Offhand we can't think of any other sports performers, or anyone in any other profession, for that matter, taking all their salaries in war bonds. If it was tried on the baseball players there just wouldn't be any baseball, that's all.

Just imagine a baseball player not only buying all his uniforms and equipment and paying his own traveling expenses, but getting his entire salary in bonds.

A Guy Must Eat

Yet that's what the golf pros do. They must stop at the best places, have an ample wardrobe that usually would shame a rain-bow, and otherwise maintain a standard of living expected of performers in such a general sport. With nothing coming in but war bonds, if they are fortunate enough to be in the money, their ability to keep going constitutes one of the better tricks.

Even in normal times when purses were paid in cold cash or non-bouncing checks most of the regulars of the touring golf troupe had a tough time making ends meet, and only two or three of the top money winners during a campaign showed anything resembling a profit.

Since our entry into the war the individual pros have been only too glad to donate their services for charity exhibitions. They're glad to take a portion of their prize purses in war bonds. But, as McSpaden intimated, a guy must eat, and unless some arrangement is made whereby the players at least can get fodder money the tournament fields soon would be made up of ghosts. And we don't mean joplins ghosts.

McSpaden has said what his fellow-players undoubtedly would have liked to say, but, fearing public opinion, wouldn't say. We don't think there's any argument against his ideas.

They're fine fellows, and will sacrifice to any reasonable extent to help the war cause. They just think that it wouldn't be asking too much if they were allowed to eat now and then.

Watch an ant hill or ant army and you will note all working—together. You will note ants helping one another, as well. In nature this law of cooperation is universal and its works. Greed and selfishness are the "monkey-wrenches" that stop all progress toward a cooperative world.—George Matthew Adams.

Faster Speedboats Seen By Gar Wood As Post-War Item

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—Gar Wood believes the armed services, which borrowed racing boat designs for fast fighting vessels, will repay the debt by making possible post-war marine speeds well above 200 miles an hour.

The silver-haired veteran of International trophy racing expects to use some of the war-time discoveries in challenging his own world's record for speed boats in competition, and he has no intention of taking a back seat in the sport in which he is an acknowledged master.

"New and lighter metals are being perfected," he explained, "and engineers will be much more powerful. Why the sky will be the limit on speeds."

He spoke proudly of the contribution of boat racing to the development of such naval craft as the fleet P-Ts, which have been devalued Japanese ships ever since the Pearl Harbor attack.

Now 64 years old, Wood started racing boats in 1906, and went on to set the present competitive record of 124.9 miles per hour with Miss America 10th in 1932. Boats have gone faster, but not in recognized races.

SUGARS ACTIVE ON STOCK LIST

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Buying remained notably selective in today's stock market, and while scattered rails, sugars and specialties gave a good account of themselves, many leaders were indifferent. Moderately improved tenders appeared at the start with gains running to a point or so for favorites. A number of new issues, including a new issue in evidence. Dealings, sluggish in the forenoon, picked up a bit toward the last.

Press statistics showed average was up 1.1 of a point at 51.5, a peak for the year to date. Of 853 issues appearing, 356 were up and 497 down or unchanged. Transfers totaled 733,579 shares compared with 900,186 Friday.

Sugars were active on indications of heavier government demand for foreign currencies. The U. S. P. A. announced that industrial supplies would be cut 10 per cent for most users.

American Distilling Company, with its life extended by the exchange, came out late in the proceedings and, "ex-everything," including diverse whisky price concessions to shareholders, was 14 1/2 points under Saturday's final quotation. It rallied for a net loss of 10 points at 35.

In the New York market were Western Union "A" and "B", Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware & Hudson, American Airlines and Oppenheim Collins. Improvement was noted in United States Steel, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Eastman Kodak, Anaconda, Houston Oil, Standard Oil (N. J.), and American Oil. The latter, which had fronted from West Porto Rico, Manati, Cuban-American and Francisco.

TRENDS CLOUDBY

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Risks and utilities turned in modest advances in today's market. There was some trading in a narrow range with trends a little cloudy. The Associated Press average of 20 rails edged into a new high since 1937 at 8.0 but its group had its share of small losers as well as numerous unchanged issues. Sales of $11,214,700, face value, compared with $11,132,600 Friday.

Among the better corporate performers, some with gains of a point or so, were Peoria & Eastern 4, Philadelphia & Reading 4, Iron and Steel, Pittsburgh & West Virginia 4 1/2, Cotton Belt first 4 1/2, Southern Railway 4 1/2, Wahash 4 1/2, S. P. 4 1/2, 3 1/2, and S. L. 4 1/2. Terminal 5, and Childs Co. 5 1/2.

Faring less well in the small-scale shuffle were most of the obligations of the Baltimore & Annapolis, and the Chesapeake & Atlantic Coast Line. North Western, Common Mackay and Hudson Coal, U. S. governments were virtually motionless all day.

A new run-up in Cuban government and corporate bonds featured a quiet foreign market. There was some trading in Argentine loans without much change in price.

TRADING TRENDS

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Stocks: Steady; selected issues advance. Bonds: Irregular; changes narrow. Cotton: Quiet; commission house and hedge selling.

Rice: Firm; better flour business. Wheat: Strong; local traders bought. Hogs: Slow; approximately 5,000 left unsold. $10.75 for 229 to 269 pounds.

Cattle: Fed steers and yearlings strong. Strictly choice stock absent. Top $16.30.

Let Your White Elephants Bring You Cash. Sell Them The Sure Way, The Want Ad Way

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

In Italy (by wireless)—When soldiers sit around during lull periods at the front, they talk about everything under the sun. Out of my recent times with front-line outfits I've tried to remember some of the things they talked about.

Two things eventually come up in every extended conversation: the latest rumor about the outfit, and discussions of what home is like and when we'll get home.

The latest rumor was that my outfit was to get no more replacements for men lost in battle, which led inevitably to a belief that they were to be withdrawn and sent home. Nobody really believed it, but everybody wanted to believe it. There were also rumors that the outfit was going to England and to India.

Memories of what America was like are actually getting pretty dim to men who have been overseas two years. As one Iowa boy said, "Why, even England is dim in my memory now, and we were there long after we were in the States."

One boy said that no matter where we went was bad for him, because we'd have to go by ship and he had an absolute horror of ships. He didn't exactly say so, but I believe he'd rather stay here the rest of his life than make that ocean crossing again.

One night in a group of some soldiers and officers the question came up whether you should yell or not when making a close-in attack.

An officer thought it was good psychology because the Germans are afraid of night attacks, and a good barrage of Indian yells would further demoralize them.

But the soldiers mainly disagreed. They said Jerry didn't scare so easily as all that, and when you yell you just give your position away.

Speaking of noise, you've probably heard the term "screaming meemies," for a certain noisy type of German shell. The boys at the front call them "screaming meemies" instead, and brother, they are bad indeed to listen to.

The Germans call the gun the "nebelwerfer." It is a six-barreled gun which fires one barrel right after another, electrically. The Camp Van Dorn, Miss. (AP)—Staff Sgt. John A. Russell, who spent two months on Guadalcanal and Tulagi, warns prospective combatants against getting "trigger happy" and tense over night noises.

"Night noises are natural," he says. "The time to worry is when there are no noises. That's when the nip is on the prowl."

The intermittent use of your car nowadays is likely to result in accumulation of moisture and acids in the works. This results in deterioration and clogging.

SOLDIERS LAUDS RED CROSS JOB

Servicemen Appreciative
Of Activities, Says
S/Sgt. Upland

The American Red Cross is doing a marvelous job for soldiers in the war. Staff Sgt. Edwin M. Upland, of Escanaba, who is stationed at Maxwell Field, Alabama, has reported.

Sgt. Upland, now home on emergency furlough as a result of the timely intervention of Red Cross officials, declared that the soldiers are very appreciative of the Red Cross activities and many have made financial contributions to the organization.

"On February 19, I was notified through the Red Cross that my mother was ill and arrangements were made for an emergency furlough so that I could come home.

"Servicemen in hospitals are visited by Red Cross Mothers who make them feel as though their own mother was there, providing cheer and the homely touch.

"At our camp, the Red Cross also is doing a fine job in providing emergency funds for soldiers about to go on furlough, or men who need finances for other causes. At one time not so long ago 5,000 cadets at our camp were given financial assistance by the Red Cross at one time, an outlay of over $30,000. This money, of course, is repaid by the soldiers, who are duly appreciative of the Red Cross services.

"Our men in service look upon the Red Cross as the best means of contact with our families back home when emergencies arise. The Red Cross is fully staffed and equipped to handle these emergencies and they get the job done accurately and quickly."

Examinations Open For Jobs With OPA

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced the urgent need for qualified persons in filling the following positions in the federal service. Harold Whittle, representative of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, will be in Escanaba for the purpose of interviewing and receiving applications from anyone desiring to be considered for these positions. He may be reached by telephone or coming to see him at the U. S. Employment Service office, 1325 Ludington street, Escanaba, any day this week commencing this morning and ending Thursday afternoon.

Investigators: $3,163 per year for the 48 hour week. Applicants should have experience in any one of the following fields: investigations, practice of law, accounting, auditing or in any supervisory position requiring a knowledge of the trade practices of firms engaged in the manufacturing, processing, or distributing of one or more commodities.

Price Specialists and Assistants: $3,163 and $2,828 per annum for the 48 hour week. Applicants should have responsible experience in a wholesale or retail concern engaged in the processing or distribution of food or fruits and vegetables and be conversant with the trade practices, methods, prices, and cost in the field of retail and personnel distribution.

Accountants—$3,163 per annum for the 48 hour week. Applicants must have had practical experience in accounting or auditing positions. These particular positions are only open to men.

Food Rationing Representative: $3,163 per annum for the 48 hour week. Applicants should have experience in the processing and distribution of food products above the retail outlet level in such a position as district manager, superintendent or supervisor of a chain of food stores.

Typists and Stenographers: $128 and $146 per month for the 48 hour week. Applicants should be able to type above 25 words per minute and take dictation at a speed of above 80 words per minute.

Inventory Of Water Frontage Is Made

Lausling—The need of adopting a standard for measuring streams and lakes so they can be specifically classified has been revealed in an inventory of publicly owned water frontage, which has been completed for thirty-two counties in the state, the lands division of the conservation department has announced.

Compilation and appraisal of the water frontage was begun in October 1941 and will be continued until the inventory is completed for all counties. The data tabulated includes method of acquisition, former owner, size of body of water, what money was used in its purchase and the character and description of the frontage. This information will be mapped and tabulated and will be valuable in formulating a water frontage policy.

BIGGEST EGG KNOWN

The largest single egg that ever existed is believed to have been the 10-pound yolk from the egg of the extinct Aepyornis, a giant prehistoric bird.

Delta Draft Board Gets Second Quota for March; 128 To Leave Saturday

The Delta county draft board yesterday received orders by telephone from state selective service headquarters to forward an additional 128 registrants for pre-induction examination at Marquette, March 4.

Thursday morning, March 2, the local board will send more than 200 men to Marquette for pre-induction examination in accordance with orders previously received.

The state headquarters requested that delivery of more than 225 additional Delta county registrants to the Marquette pre-induction examination station on Saturday, March 4, but local board officials advised the state headquarters that the delivery of this number, coming immediately upon the delivery of more than 200 men only two days previous, could not be accomplished within the limited time remaining to prepare necessary papers. The quota then was cut to 128. The two quotas for March will result in the delivery within two days of upwards of 450 Delta county draft registrants for physical examination.

NO ADVANCE NOTICE

Effective immediately, draft boards in Michigan are discontinuing the notices of reopening of classification generally sent to registrants about to be reclassified. The notices formerly were mailed to both registrants and their employers. Under the new procedure the first notice that a registrant will have that he is headed for military induction is the receipt of a 1-A classification notice. Registrants are expected to keep their local board informed of any changes in status including occupational changes, dependency, address, etc.

aminations preparatory to induction into the military forces.

In order to meet the March 4 quota, state selective service officials ordered the Delta county board to call up all registrants now in Class A-2 and Class 2-B, whose deferments normally would have expired in June or previous. These classifications are for men deferred because of employment in necessary civilian activity or necessary war production.

Calls Up Farm Workers

The board also has been advised to call up agricultural workers who are not meeting assigned food quotas. The 3-C classification, now reserved for family men engaged in farming, will be discontinued and all farm workers earning deferments will be placed in Class 2-C, a classification previously reserved only for single men engaged in necessary agricultural activity.

Emphasis is being made upon the fact that notices to men selected to fill the Saturday, March 4, call will be issued only a couple of days before the men are scheduled to go to Marquette.

The board yesterday announced the names of over 500 registrants called for pre-induction examinations Thursday, March 2. The group will report at six a. m. Thursday morning at the city hall and will leave by bus at seven o'clock. They will return to Escanaba the same day.

Transfers from other boards to Delta county follow:

STUDENTS LOOK INTO CITY HALL

Reports On Government
Given At Escanaba
Lions Meeting

Pertinent facts on the conduct of Escanaba city affairs, along with some timely recommendations for future improvement, were given last night by Escanaba high school seniors in their report of one day spent filling the shoes of city officials and department heads. The summary of their activities was outlined by the student group at a meeting of the Escanaba Lions club, sponsors of the youth government project for the past five years. City and school officials and visiting Kiwanis and Rotary club members also were present for the interesting program, presented following a dinner at the Sherman hotel.

Jess Lavolette, Lions club president, introduced various guests, including E. E. Edick, school principal, and Miss Nina Lay of the faculty, who worked with the student government group. N. J. Holden, program chairman, then turned the meeting over to Melvin Marvie, who officiated as mayor while students were gathering their observations on city hall affairs. Marvie summed up his official duties and introduced his fellow councilmen, Bob Crepeau, Jacqueline Beaudoin, George Creedle and Jack Beck, each of whom introduced a portion of the city government program suggested for the future. Mayor Marvie then passed on the master of ceremonies job to Jack Molin, who served as city manager for the students, and Molin called on his staff for reports of their departments.

Covering these assignments were the following: Mark Bergman, city treasurer; Shirley Baker, comptroller; Regina Manning, city clerk; Nancy Moran, director of recreation; Roy Williams, city engineer; Ray Krueger, director of public works; Nellie Hendricks, superintendent of lighting; Forrest Kallin, gas and steam plant superintendent; Jack Glavin, water superintendent; Gladys Walker, service department; Katherine Ryan, superintendent of sewage department; Ruth Goodreau, city forester; Dick Davidson, chief of police; and Warren Cleary, fire chief.
